LEOPOLD INVOLVED IN ILLINOIS PEN PROBE

CHICAGO MURDERER CLAIMS HE REFUSED PART IN JAIL BREAK

Witnessed Escape Of
Convicts Who Slew
Deputy Warden

JOLIET, Ill., May 8.—Nathan Leopold, jr., millionaire college graduate who murdered 14-year-old Bobby Franks, today became one of the central figures in the investigation of conditions at the state penitentiary where he is held prisoner for life.

Evidence today revealed young Leopold narrowly missed an opportunity to escape from prison when seven convicts murdered a deputy warden and slipped through the gates to freedom.

While one of the jailers insisted Leopold pleaded with the escaping convicts to take him along, Leopold asserted he refused to participate in the dash to freedom.

The fact however, that Leopold was in solitary confinement at the time, Deputy Warden Peter Klein was killed and saw the convicts who stabbed him to death, flee down the prison corridors, makes it certain the youth will be an important figure in the official investigation.

Leopold had been sentenced to "solitary" because he had stolen sugar for his tomatoes in the mess room.

When the escaping convicts came down the corridor of the cell house they stopped at Leopold's cell, seized the keys from a jailer and freed him.

A hasty consultation was held, according to Jailer Jacob Judnick, and despite Leopold's pleas to accompany them, the convicts decided to leave him behind.

Leopold's version of the affair was slightly different. He insisted he knew nothing of the escape before it happened and that he refused to go with the other prisoners on their dash to freedom.

At the coroner's inquest into Klein's death, which will be opened Monday, Leopold may be called to tell what he knows of conditions in the penitentiary which made the murder and escape possible. Charges of corruption in prison management will be brought before the coroner's jury, State's Attorney A. H. Rehn announced.

Chance Meeting at Venice Ripens Into Marriage of Mrs. Horace E. Dodge Sr.

DETROIT, May 8.—A romance which began with a chance meeting at Venice, Italy, three years ago and later ripened into affection at Palm Beach, culminates today in the marriage of Mrs. Horace E. Dodge, Sr. widow of the automobile magnate and Hugh Dillman, of Columbus, Ohio, former actor and ex-husband of Marjorie Rambeau, screen star.

The ceremony will be quietly performed at the home of Mrs. Dodge's only son, Horace E. Dodge, Jr., at Grossette Pointe, a suburb of Detroit.

Following the wedding the Dillman's will leave on a honeymoon which involves an initial tour by automobile and eventually a trip to Europe.

On his arrival here to marry one of the outstanding fortunes amassed with picturesque prosperity of the automotive industry, Dillman, a man of 43, describes himself as a "wretched golfer, interested in the stage and literature."

"I am just a plain American without a hobby, a bug or as far as I know an eccentricity. I have lived a pretty sane, normal life and I hope to continue to do so."

Future plans Dillman said, involves a division of time between Detroit and Palm Beach. Mrs.

Dodge has recently acquired the $4,000,000 Palm Beach estate of Joshua S. Cosden, oil king. Her Detroit home is Rose Terrace, at Grossette Pointe.

On the death of the late Horace Dodge his widow received the net income from an estate inventoried at $37,186,858. Since then the Dodge Brothers Motor Company was sold to Dillon, Reed and Co., of New York for $149,000,000 a record private transaction at the time.

Dillman is a native of Columbus and a son of a prosperous tailor who retired nine years ago and died in 1922. Dillman's real name is McGoughy. He is a graduate of Ohio State University.

CREDIT SYSTEM MAY DETERMINE FATE OF MANY OHIO FARMERS

Secretary of Farm Bureau Urges Better Financing

COLUMBUS, O., May 8.—A system of proper credit—or the lack of it—may determine the financial fate of many Ohio farmers, according to Murray D. Lincoln, secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation who has completed a survey of credit conditions in Ohio and other territory.

"Farmers need some form of central financial institution, owned by them, or lack of proper credit will continue to check their farm progress," he declared today, adding that the proper system has not yet been worked out, particularly in the production and marketing or operating field.

"Unfortunately every time some one speaks of the credit problem," Lincoln said, "most people think he is attempting to make it possible for the farmer who is not entitled to credit to get it."

"But any one who is granted even reasonable saneness, isn't interested in spending time to think out or set up any way by which farmers not worthy of confidence or credit, can get it."

Pointing out limitations of present farm credit facilities, Lincoln found loans of thirty, sixty or ninety days "do not get the farm turnover."

"Agriculture needs an agency to furnish money to farmers in a collective way on terms and time periods that will meet their demands," he urged.

"Farmers, in Lincoln's opinion, do not get money at as low a rate of interest as industries of 'equal importance, necessity and security.'"

Lincoln is convinced the farmers will obtain satisfactory credit if they will but set up their own agencies properly capitalized and managed. "Real progress will come to farmers when they themselves realize the need of a better system of finance," he pleaded.

Letting Bygones Be Bygones

"Let bygones be bygones, and let us be sweethearts again," were the strains of a song which echoed from the cabin of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stillman, of the famous "Indian guide" divorce, as the banker and his wife returned from their "second honeymoon" in Europe.

"I haven't any plans to announce as yet," Daugherty said.

His Columbus attorney, James N. Linton, intimated however, that Daugherty may remain in Columbus and post bond for his appearance in New York later.

GIRLS USE WHIP TO WIPE OUT INSULT

Man Punished For Remark By New Form of Flapper

WARREN, O., May 8.—The story of how four girls, one of whom had been insulted, lured a man into their automobile, took him to a thicket in an outlying section and horse-whipped him, was revealed today by Chief Deputy Sheriff Boyd.

Boyd refused to disclose the names of the principals but said that several days ago the man made a slur on the girls.

The other three young women were present, he said.

Determining upon revenge the girls later enticed the man into their automobile and drove to the edge of town. At this juncture three of them pinned him down while the fourth produced a horse-whip.

During the beating which followed the man's cries aroused occupants of a nearby farm house who summoned police. Serenity prevailed when police arrived.

HOME BREWING O. K. IS ANDREWS PLAN

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Home brewing and even running a small distillery in a private dwelling, provided the product is for personal consumption, may be carried on free from federal interference under new plans announced today by Assistant Secretary of the treasury Andrews.

Recognizing a man's home is his castle, the dry czar has decided to ask congress to change the wording of pending legislation designed to allow federal agents to search any private dwelling suspected of violating the prohibition law.

Andrews sent a bill to congress to strengthen the Volstead act. Its search warrant clause raised a storm of protests. Now the prohibition chief has agreed to change the measure so government officers private draw can obtain search warrants for private dwellings only after it is ascertained intoxicants are being manufactured for "commercial purposes."

Meantime the dry czar is gradually strengthening his organization for the summer campaign against law violators.

PASTOR BLAMED FOR ANNOYING WOMAN TO PREACH ON SUBJECT

May Answer Charge For Which Law Was Invoked

MONROE, Mich., May 8.—Communicants of the First Baptist Church here have been promised a sermon tomorrow on "Sanctity of the Home" by their pastor, Rev. William R. Curtis, who has been enjoined from further alleged love-making involving Mrs. Iva Bryan, a 25-year-old member of the congregation.

Explaining the action of Mrs. Bryan, who is the wife of a well known real estate operator here, James J. Kelly, her attorney said:

"My client simply says Dr. Curtis has annoyed her with devotion and refused to stop when requested to. She wants no more of it."

The 50-year-old pastor, however, professed not only that his relations with Mrs. Bryan had been wholly of a ministerial nature but said he did not know where the Bryan's home was since they recently moved.

Dr. Curtis in announcing his text for Sunday suggested charges of indiscretions against him may have been brought in the spirit of "vengeful revenge" because of Mrs. Bryan's recent removal from direction of a group of children in the church.

Included in Mrs. Bryan's charges are allegations that Curtis, by continuously calling on her caused gossip in the neighborhood; that he forced his attention on her until she was obliged to lock the doors of her home against him.

MILITARY AIDED BY TANKS GUARD DOCKS AND MARKET PLACES

Labor Leaders Fear Strikers May Join With Radicals

LONDON, May 8.—Military forces of the government stepped into the British strike situation today.

A detachment of Grenadier Guards was on duty in Smithfield meat markets, London, following disturbances last night.

A battalion of troops was at Poplar in the east end guarding the East India docks.

Regents Park was closed to the public with police guarding the entrances.

The government has thrown tanks into the struggle against the strikers war to force the nation into submission to their terms.

A battalion of eight tanks, all set for action roared along the road toward Central London between Mimbledon and Esher at 10 a. m. Their destination was unknown except to the military.

With continuance of incidents which were bound to develop bitterness among the workers, the labor leaders great fear today was that the strike may get into the hands of radicals.

The men now directing the idle millions are experienced statesmen. But as the dull days of inactivity lengthens, as provocative incident piles upon incident, the strikers become more restive. It was feared the men may gather behind the radicals.

Some hint of what the government can do was conveyed in this morning's troop movements. A broader hint was given when the government broadcast a message to the armed forces of the crown saying they would be supported in any "action" taken in "an honest endeavor to aid civil authorities."

Sir William Joyson-Hicks, home secretary has broadcast an appeal for 30,000 additional London volunteer police to be enlisted Monday.

Rail and transportation facilities were being strengthened.

In this morning's British Gazette, government publication, Lord Oxford, better known as H. H. Asquith, war time premier, before his elevation to the peerage, declared the strike "is aimed directly at the daily life of the whole community," and that the man in the street rather than the capitalist must bear the burden of the upheaval.

LONDON, May 8.—Two hours after a recruiting place at Walthamstow opened today, the station was mobbed by 2,000 persons who stormed the entrance, according to a government communique. Police charged and quickly controlled the situation, the communique said, adding that rumors of disaffection among troops which "red propagandists are industriously spreading," are without foundation.

"The situation generally is the same as yesterday," the communique continued. "There has been no recurrence of attacks on gas line stations and the organization of surgical and medical supplies is being extended."

LONDON, May 8.—(1 p. m.) A destroyer has been sent to Manchester where the unloading of two food ships has been prevented, today's government communique says.

Patrol boats have arranged to protect food ships henceforth.

Marines were called out to remove obstructions which a crowd of strikers in Middlesborough had placed along the railways, the communique also revealed.

BUSINESS BETTER REPORT INDICATES

CLEVELAND, O., May 8.—Although there was a slackening tendency in business and industry in general in March, conditions in the Fourth Federal Reserve District are now on the upgrade, the monthly review of the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank published today declares.

The first three months of the year as a whole, compared favorably with the corresponding period for 1925, the report said, pointing out that quarterly earnings statements revealed increases in some instances and equalized conditions in others.

Savings deposits in seventy selected banks increased 6 per cent the report said, but this was offset to some extent by a slight increase in commercial failures.

CLUE TO MISSING MAN MYSTERY FAILS

CADIZ, O., May 8.—Excitement which stirred the community yesterday following the finding of a body believed to be that of Clark C. Baker, missing Mansfield Dance hall proprietor, subsided today after Mrs. Frances Crum Baker, the missing man's wife, failed to identify the body.

Mrs. Baker, Mansfield authorities and Baker's relatives were summoned to Cadiz when the body was found hanging in a woodland near here. A handkerchief bearing blurred initials and other effects found on the body led to the belief that the body was Baker's.

Baker's sister, of Shelby, Ohio, said the resemblance was so striking that at first she was convinced the body was that of her brother.

With the collapse of this clue, Mansfield and Richland county authorities resumed their investigation of the baffling mystery.

MOTHER'S DAY

A day has been set by the nation To honor the mother, so dear, To pay respect to the living And the departed forever revered.

A mother has joys and sorrows, Her child may wayward be, But her love goes out to him the more And prayers ne'er cease to be.

A mother's prayers will follow A wayward boy to the end, Still hoping, and wishing and watching, To see if he meets a true friend.

A friend that may give him good counsel, To shield him from doing the strong, And in his heart plant a longing To return and be brave and strong.

And after his longing for mother, Will change to a loving caress, Or if in distant lands may be roving, A letter he will send to be blessed.

So then, if Mother be living, Wear a flower of brightest hue, To cheer her along her weary way, To show that your heart is true.

But, if she is gone, and is waiting, Her loved one "over there," Then wear the white carnation, The emblem, so pure and fair.

Almina J. Downing, Xenia, Ohio.

The Theatre

Whoever has heard of, read of or seen the play, "Emperor Hones," the celebrated stage success of Eugene O'Neil, is undoubtedly aware that the title character in this was played and is still being played by a Negro actor, Charles Gilpin. He is rated quite an excellent actor too, having gained transcontinental applause.

Gilpin is now to be seen on the stage as "Uncle Tom" in the Universal Production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." He is probably the first colored trouper to gain such notable recognition in the movies.

The colored actor is making rapid strides on the stage of the country. Since the birth of Jazz he has held a popular spot light for his rendition of the new-found music. The Negro's sense of rhythm and ability to sing has long been appreciated. But his arrival on the stage, as a real actor has been hampered.

Reviews composed entirely of colored actors and actresses have been enthusiastically received in New York and Paris. The smartest night clubs have their colored performers. But the role of more serious stage work has been left until now to the white actor who has attempted to imitate the feelings and life of the Negro. But at last the Negro's ability and willingness to enact the stage characters of his people have resulted in the discovery of many fine actors and actresses. Their work will continue to be appreciated, as long as they are cast properly.

FINALE

This is the last of a series of thirty editorials which appeared in this space weekly. Each has attempted to preach the doctrine of faith in the home town, co-operation, harmony in business relations and community progress.

All hackneyed phrases and all ancient and time-worn subjects—topics for the Babbitts if Mr. Mencken is to be recognized as authority. If any has hit its mark or achieved its purpose, it is not visible on the surface.

After reading these editorials for nearly thirty weeks, (if they were read), a movement was started in Xenia and gained considerable momentum, to revert the city to central standard time. That, in itself, is proof of the impotence of mere words set on paper.

But the movement did not succeed, so that perhaps there are kindred spirits also fighting the reactionary efforts of conservatism. A cross section of the history of civic achievement in Xenia is given in the story of Xenia's municipal park. The park site was donated to the recreation association by P. H. Flynn.

The association then started a campaign for $10,000 to finance its development. The campaign waged lustily for some weeks for a sum which would represent less than one man's donation to a similar enterprise in Dayton, fell short of its mark nearly half-way. And of the fifty per cent pledges received, only a part of them were ever made good by the pledgers.

Charley Murphy, it is reliably reported, spent $268,000 on the Murphy theater in Wilmington. Readers, I give you the Barber fountain. Mr. Murphy has not lived in Wilmington for years and could expect no personal benefit from his theater. Xenians who live and rear their children here, fell down on a $10,000 campaign for a park.

But there is a bright side. Those who are working for the best interests of Xenia have managed to give it a capable and efficient city government, one of the best municipal water plants in the state, miles of beautiful paved streets, excellent schools and churches.

When it is considered that these achievements have been done in the face of a bitter reactionary tendency that has fought everything progressive, their importance is greater.

Xenia is operating in a rut of conventional small-town dimensions. When this paragraph is read this series of editorials will be forgotten. But Mayor John Prugh has a scheme that may yet crystalize sentiment toward a progressive goal. Perhaps he will attempt to launch it soon. I give up but Mayor Prugh does not.

XENIA TO OBSERVE MOTHERS' DAY SUNDAY

Due reverence will be paid mothers of the nation in song and story, Sunday, when annual Mother's Day programs will be given throughout the land.

All peoples, men, women and children, will pay respect to their mothers, to whom they owe the greatest debt, in various manners on that day. Mother's Day has been set aside in May for several years and fitting observance has become an institution in the land. The carnation is the official Mother's Day flower, a fragrant white flower to be worn if one's mother has passed away and a colored one if she is alive.

Even nature itself has awakened to show the beauty of life which is symbolized in the spirit of Mother's Day. There could be no prettier time of year chosen to pay her reverence than when the trees are in bloom, bursting into leafy bud and the earth is carpeted with new grass and the air is full of golden sunshine and fragrance.

Churches will play the leading part in the observance of Mother's Day throughout the United States. Xenia pastors have announced fitting programs in connection with the day and mothers will be highly honored in all services. In addition to sermons, programs of music and story have been rehearsed for the day.

Altars of churches will be banked with the first Spring flowers and expected perfect weather will add to the joy of the occasion. In his proclamation, urging observance of Mother's Day, Governor Vio Donahay said, "Our nation will not perish as long as it keeps alive the fire of its devotion, the mother, home and country, the sweetest trinity located in the hearts of men."

WOOD NAMED CHIEF OF ELECTION BOARD AT MEETING FRIDAY

Edward Wood, Xenia, Democrat, was elected chief and Earl Short, Xenia, Republican, was named clerk of the board of elections, at the re-organization meeting Friday afternoon at the Court House.

Short has been clerk a number of years. Wood automatically became chief under the Ohio law providing that the board member of opposite political affiliations from the clerk and with the least number of years yet to serve on the board shall be appointed.

Since Short is a Republican the chief must necessarily be a Democrat. There are two Democratic members and two Republican members. Wood has but one more year to serve, his term expiring in 1927.

Ralph Kendig, Valley Road, Beavercreek Twp., is the new Democratic board member succeeding John Alexander, Yellow Springs, whose term expired this year. Alexander was formerly chief. Kendig was appointed for a two year term.

D. O. Jones, Beavercreek Twp., and Walton Spahr, Sugar Creek Twp., are the two Republican members, the former being re-appointed this year.

ICE CREAM MAKERS TO MEET IN DAYTON

Ice cream manufacturers and milk distributors from Montgomery, Fayette, Clark, Miami, Darke, Champaign and Greene Counties will meet in Dayton Tuesday to consider the increased demand for dairy products.

Tests just made by the State Department of Agriculture, it was announced in Columbus today, show that the butter fat content of ice cream manufactured in Ohio is one-fourth greater than that required by the state standard.

During 1925, the average consumption of ice cream in Ohio was two dishes per person per week. With the arrival of warm weather, the demand for ice cream has greatly increased, manufacturers report, and virtually all of the plants are running at high speed.

THREE INDICTED BY GRAND JURY FACE JUDGE GOWDY ON SATURDAY

Three persons indicted by the May grand jury last Monday appeared before Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy Saturday morning and a fourth was scheduled for arraignment sometime during the day.

Frank Stunich, W. Main St. grocer, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with carrying concealed weapons. Sentence was deferred and the case continued until next Friday morning by Judge Gowdy during which time the court announced he will conduct a further investigation into the case. He was released under $500 bond.

Stunich is alleged to have assaulted John Day. He told the court he had acquired the habit of carrying a loaded revolver since he was held up and robbed by three youthful bandits last February.

W. H. Minor, Rosemore, indicted on three counts of issuing checks without sufficient funds in the bank, will not be required to enter a plea until Judge Gowdy appoints counsel to represent him. He represented he was without funds to employ private counsel and asked for the pauper's privilege.

John Nooks, colored, indicted for carrying concealed weapons, was scheduled to be arraigned Saturday.

Susie Sanders, colored, bound over to the grand jury for pointing firearms at Fred Porter, colored, also appeared in court Saturday.

Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall declared the Sanders case was the only one not considered by the grand jury because of lack of time. If the criminal docket becomes crowded the May grand jury may be recalled to consider the Sanders case as well as other matters. Meanwhile she was released on her own recognizance.

She is said by police to have fired several shots at Fred Porter during a disturbance at her home but aimed poorly and wounded another man in the hand. Porter is serving out a fine in the County jail for disorderly conduct.

Leaping for Life

Mlle. Joan LaCosta, French girl speedster, escaped a horrible death when she drove her flaming car into the ocean at Daytona Beach, Fla., recently. While traveling 130 m. p. h. in attempt to hang up a feminine speedway mark, the gasoline line suddenly broke and the car, fanned by the terrific pace, became a flying comet. Nothing daunted a few days later she secured another machine and shattered three world's records, traveling 138 miles an hour. Above Mlle. Joan LaCosta is leaping from the racer.

ROADSIDE TREES

No one who drives a car or rides a horse or travels afoot along our country roads can fail to recall the comfort and charm of those stretches where the way lies through woods. Even the scattered patches where the roadsides are lined with double rows of ancient trees—maples or elms or chestnuts in New England, oaks and hickories and black walnuts in other regions—afford a welcome shade and rouse a gentle gratitude for the unknown benefactor, now long dead, who planted them.

Why should there not be more of such inviting aisles? Certainly there is no lack of room. Roadside planting is not new. Some of the states have long been interested in it and have done much work, yet the Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture estimates that there is still available for the purpose some nine and a half million acres of roadside land now vacant and useless.

Besides the Department of Agriculture, the Federation of Women's Clubs and various memorial associations interested in perpetuating the memory of soldiers who died in the Great War have become interested in the work, from the economic as well as the interested and sentimental point of view. They are directing their efforts chiefly toward inducing townships to take up the matter in a comprehensive way.

Nine and a half million acres are capable of producing a great deal of valuable timber, in a country that is using up its present supply of timber at an appalling rate. But it could produce much more. Hickory nuts are selling for twenty-five cents a pound and English walnuts at the same price, and pecans for twice as much. Even chestnuts are scarce and high. What a harvest we could reap from our roadside nut trees if the waste land were put to work! There are foreign chestnuts that are immune to the blight, and native butternuts that bear kernels thrice the ordinary size and hickory nuts with thinner shells than usual. Who but the dwellers in far woodsy places know the delicate flavor of beechnuts or of the native wayside hazel?

We need some modern Johnny Appleseeds who shall be as "nutty" as he was seedy

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

When Thomas Jefferson knew that his days on earth were numbered he requested that three services be had rendered the American people be engraved on his monument. The first of these was the authorship of the Declaration of Independence, the second the authorship of the Statute of Virginia for Religious Freedom. This famous bill was drawn by Jefferson in 1779 and became a law in 1786. Inasmuch as the essence of this statute is embodied in the first amendment to the Constitution, it makes particularly good reading for the times.

In slightly abbreviated form and couched in noble language, here follows the statute which marked a golden milestone in the march for liberty:

"Well aware that the opinions and beliefs of men depended not on their own will, but follow involuntary the evidence proposed to their mind; that Almighty God hath created the mind free, and manifested His supreme will that free it shall remain, by making it altogether insusceptible of restraints; that all attempts to influence it by temporal punishments or burthens, or by civil incapacitations, tend only to beget habits of hypocrisy and meanness; that to compel a man to furnish contributions of money for the propagation of opinions which he disbelieves and abhors, is sinful and tyrannical; that our civil rights have no dependence on our religious opinions any more than our opinions in physics or geometry; that the opinions of men are not the object of civil government, nor under its jurisdiction; that it is time enough for the rightful purposes of civil government for its officers to interfere when principles break out into overt acts against peace and good order; and finally the truth is great and will prevail if left to herself—errors ceasing to be dangerous when it is freely permitted to contradict them: We the general Assembly of Virginia do enact that no man shall be compelled to frequent or support any religious worship, place or ministry whatsoever, nor shall be enforced restrained, molested, or burthened in his body or goods, or shall otherwise suffer on account of his religious opinions or beliefs; but that all men shall be free to profess and by argument to maintain their opinions in matters of religion, and that the same shall in no wise diminish, enlarge, or affect their civil capacities"

To the reverent approbation of this document we commend all American citizens, Jew and Gentile, Protestant and Catholic, Free Thinker and Agnostic. If it is not possible for us to live together under so broad and benign an ideal of freedom, mutually tolerant each of the other's belief, then our Washingtons, Jeffersons, Jacksons, and Lincolns lived in vain, and we their spiritual and political descendants are degenerate sons of illustrious sires.

CLEANING STONE AND MARBLE

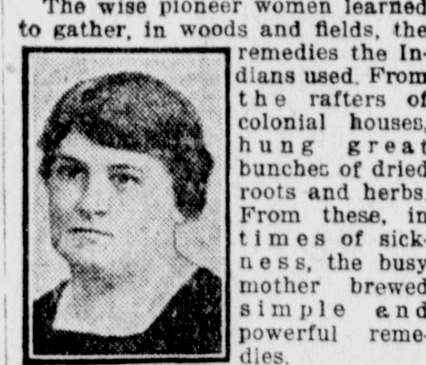

So often the housekeeper is puzzled as to how to clean her stone hearth, a piece of marble, or a treasured ornament of alabaster. It is as shiftless to let these hard surfaces become disfigured as to let one's furniture go endlessly without polish.

Alabaster is easily kept clean. Remove any stains by sponging with flannel wet with spirits of turpentine, then wash with lukewarm suds of white soap and wipe dry with a clean cloth. Polish with a dry, soft-bristled brush in plaster of Paris.

Stone Hearth or Steps: If grease-stained, dissolve one cup of washing soda in two quarts of water and pour this onto the stone. Then cover thickly with a paste of fuller's earth and hot water, and let stay on overnight. In the morning, merely brush off and the stone will be clean.

IN DAYS OF OUR FOREFATHERS

Women Prepared Their Own Medicines

The wise pioneer women learned to gather, in woods and fields, the remedies the Indians used. From the rafters of colonial houses, hung great bunches of dried roots and herbs. From these, in times of sickness, the busy mother brewed simple and powerful remedies.

From roots and herbs, Lydia E. Pinkham, a descendant of these sturdy pioneers, made her Vegetable Compound. The beneficial effects of this dependable medicine are vouched for by hundreds of women who tell of returning health and energy.

Mrs. Wm. Kraft of 2333 Vinewood Ave., Detroit, Mich., saw a Pinkham advertisement in the "News" one day and made up her mind that she would give the Compound a trial. At that time she was very weak. "After the first bottle," she writes, "I began to feel better and like a new woman after taking six bottles. I recommend it to others and always keep a bottle in the house."

If Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?

SIDELIGHTS ON Greene County History

GLACIAL DRIFT

Centuries ago, possibly before America was inhabited by primitive man, the great ice sheet many feet in thickness, moved slowly down from the north until it reached an irregular line in Ohio north of the Ohio River, scooping out beds of new lakes, levelling hills, filling the valleys and cutting new river channels.

This immense mass of ice passed over the land which centuries later became Greene County leaving in this section numerous traces of its work. Materials for an extended study of the drift are spread over the rocky floor of the county.

As the ice came grinding over, it polished and planed the surface of Niagara limestone almost over the entire county, especially are the markings of the ice noticeable in sections of the county where cliff limestone is exposed. These grooves are obvious on the uncovered surface of Yellow Springs quarry and have a direction in most instances of from 10 to 15 degrees west of north.

They extend in a general direction which cuts the direction of the "Glen," immediately adjoining, at a 25 degree angle, showing that not even such a deep fissure as the "Glen" had influence in changing the course of this ponderous juggernaut of ice.

Greene County is indebted to the ice sheet for the beds of clean sand and gravel which occur almost everywhere on the surface of this section, especially on the higher points.

Of the several gravel banks in the county the one at Yellow Springs is deserving of special notice. It is located south of the railroad tracks. Its altitude rises above the rather flat surrounding country to a height of forty feet and embraces an area of about two acres.

In addition to the sand and gravel deposits in its composition, there are considerable quantities of clay. Boulders of huge size are found in the bank. The largest one is seven feet long. It is similar to other large-sized boulders of southern Ohio in that its composition is largely of gneiss, banded with rose feldspar, a crystalline substance.

The extensive gravel beds in the county furnish a well-nigh inexhaustible supply of excellent road-making material and sand and gravel for concrete making.

Postal receipts during April 1926, amounted to $4,266.45 as compared with receipts during the same month last year of $3,725.90. This is an increase of $540.55.

Today's Talk

THIS LITTLE TYPEWRITER

For fifteen years this little machine has been my companion. In a room of quiet, and one so silently lonely, each small key has imprinted upon the page the simple thoughts from my heart. It has written nothing new. Just the human expressions of one mind, colored by the better thoughts of other minds, but bathed in the heart of this writer's desires.

Have they been worth while? This little typewriter won't say. It simply serves these fingers. Fingers that have tried at so many other tasks—but this at least the happiest of all.

Just thoughts from a very imperfect and often blundering life. Thoughts inspired by the beauty and loveliness of others, sweetened by the sweetness of nobler lives.

This little typewriter is my sacred shrine sometimes. Because I tell it so much. Often what I tell it never gets farther than its imprint—and then is tucked away or else destroyed. Because we had our little talk anyway. And sometimes all we need is the little talk—even though merely given to the faithful and obedient machine.

For, you see, the one you want most of all to talk to isn't always around. Maybe just in your heart where you store your hunger and your love.

But many of the simple talks go out into the big world, as this and others have gone. This little typewriter is always ready. It never finds fault. But I think it does keep saying: "Do better, do better, do better!"

Of course, we never know whether it is worth its keep, but we keep talking to it anyway.

We do so much not knowing why. Perhaps sometime it will all be explained.

MODISH MITZI—Dad Says Charity Should Begin At Home BY J. V. JAY

"Mitzi? Well, she is working all day for some charity organization," he phones Dad. "She's never home." At this moment Mitzi enters in a perfectly new and very smart polka dotted silk dress. She wears one of those new, shiny gold bands that wind twice around the neck. "It's all over, Dad. Our campaign to get clothes for the poor is an overwhelming success."

Just how overwhelming it is Dad is yet to find out. "I wonder, Mitzi, with all your work that you have had time to get that new dotted scarf and that's a new hat, too," he discovers. Mitzi thinks it's best not to enlighten him. But the polka dots are clever aren't they? The hat has a cunning green pin that is lily-shaped at the top.

Polly child, you certainly do look, ah, well, tempting, yes, tempting is the word," groans Dad. "It's my new dress," explains Polly, modestly. Of course, that may have something to do with it, the dress combines polka dots and crepe. It has a polka dotted line cape that is very swagger. The girls are springing a lot of new clothes these days.

There must be a mistake. About a dozen people must be using Dad's charge account. Mitzi tells him no. She just had to have a lot of new clothes. She gave all her others to charity. "Charity," roars Dad as much as he could ever roar. "Charity begins at home."

XENIA WILL HAVE COLORED BIG LEAGUE BALL; MARCOS TO PLAY

Xenia is to have colored big league baseball this summer.

This was the substance of an announcement made Friday night by John Matthews, manager of the Dayton Marcos, entering the National League for colored players.

Matthews has a strong club entered in the league this year but found the schedule of home games at Dayton would not warrant playing them all on the home lot. As the home game between Xenia and Dayton, his team representing the two cities in the league.

Marcos will be seen Wednesday afternoon at Washington Park opening the season Wednesday afternoon, May 12 at the local diamond against the strong A. B. C. Club, of Indianapolis, Ind. Sunday and Monday the two teams will play at Dayton after which the Marcos go on the road, for three weeks before playing on the home lot again.

The A. B. C. club is entered in the colored league this season and with Rube Foster, Chicago, back of the outfit several star players have been obtained to bolster the lineup making it one of the strongest professional organizations in the country.

Padrone, the Cuban ace, will probably be the pitching selection of the A. B. C. leader in Wednesday's game while Manager Matthews will likely start Wilson the lad who struck out seventeen batters in last Sunday's game at Dayton against the Wiedemann club, of Newport, Ky. Goldie Davis, St. Joe, Mo., hurling ace, is also a member of the Marcos staff and can be relied upon if needed.

The Marcos lineup this season comprises star players from all sections of the country. Whitlock at first base is said to be one of the classiest keystone guardians in colored baseball and is of big league calibre.

Marcos are hoping to get away to a good start this season and will place their strongest lineup in the field Wednesday.

Wednesday's game will start at 3 p. m. with competent officials in charge.

ENGLISH MEN TEACHERS DECLARE WAR, ATTACKING EQUAL PAY PLAN FOR WOMEN

LONDON, May 3 (United Press).—A serious educational conflict has arisen among teachers in English schools by the firm stand of men teachers not to serve under women and not to accept a status of equal salary with women. The women teachers claim equal rights and a sex war that threatens to shake the present school system has been declared.

The fight is between the Schoolmasters' Association and the women's organization which is commonly known as N. U. T. or the National Union of Teachers. The women have been working persistently for a long time, with the result that the men became alarmed and declared open warfare.

USE OF NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING WILL PRODUCE RESULTS

Newspaper advertising is of vital importance to every man or woman who spends money for the necessities or luxuries of life. By making a daily practice of reading the newspaper advertisements you keep in close touch with the latest offerings and lowest prices.

Warren Wright, president of the Calumet Baking Powder Co., is authority for the statement that they spend millions of dollars in newspaper advertising. This tremendous volume of advertising creates a gigantic demand for Calumet.

Calumet advertising, like all other advertising back of a meritorious product, goes on record in black and white as to the value of Calumet Baking Powder. It promises the housewife better bakings at lower baking costs and the Calumet Company must live up to their printed pledge, which, of course they do and have done for the past twenty-five years.

Newspaper advertising is localized advertising. Consequently, it benefits the dealer as well as the consumer, because it reaches buyers who can transact business with him. It moves the goods from the shelves. It keeps his stock fresh and clean. It enables him to sell the highest quality merchandise at the lowest possible prices.

CITY BUS SERVICE IS INAUGURATED

Under a special permit of City Manager S. O. Hale, temporary bus service on E. Main and S. Detroit Sts. the route formerly covered by the city traction car, was inaugurated Saturday morning by Carl Fent, Xenia bus operator.

Fent has agreed to furnish this service on the same schedule, same route and same fare of seven cents as the traction car indefinitely or until City Commission can grant a franchise to busses.

Fent operates the Xenia-Washington C. H. bus line and equipped the city line with a modern fifteen passenger bus-Saturday.

Trips will be made to the O. S. and S. O. Home terminal on the even hour and twenty minutes before the hour. Bus will leave for the east corporation line terminal at twenty minutes after the hour.

CHRYSLER "58"

Chrysler engineers have designed the Chrysler "58" to satisfy the rigorous driving requirements of today, joined to a most unusual economy of operation.

How well they have succeeded is shown by the fact that the Chrysler "58" attains and maintains a speed of 58 miles per hour, accelerates from 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds, and achieves 25 miles to the gallon.

Some cars have one of these features; a few have two—but none, regardless of price, except Chrysler "58", gives all three in combination.

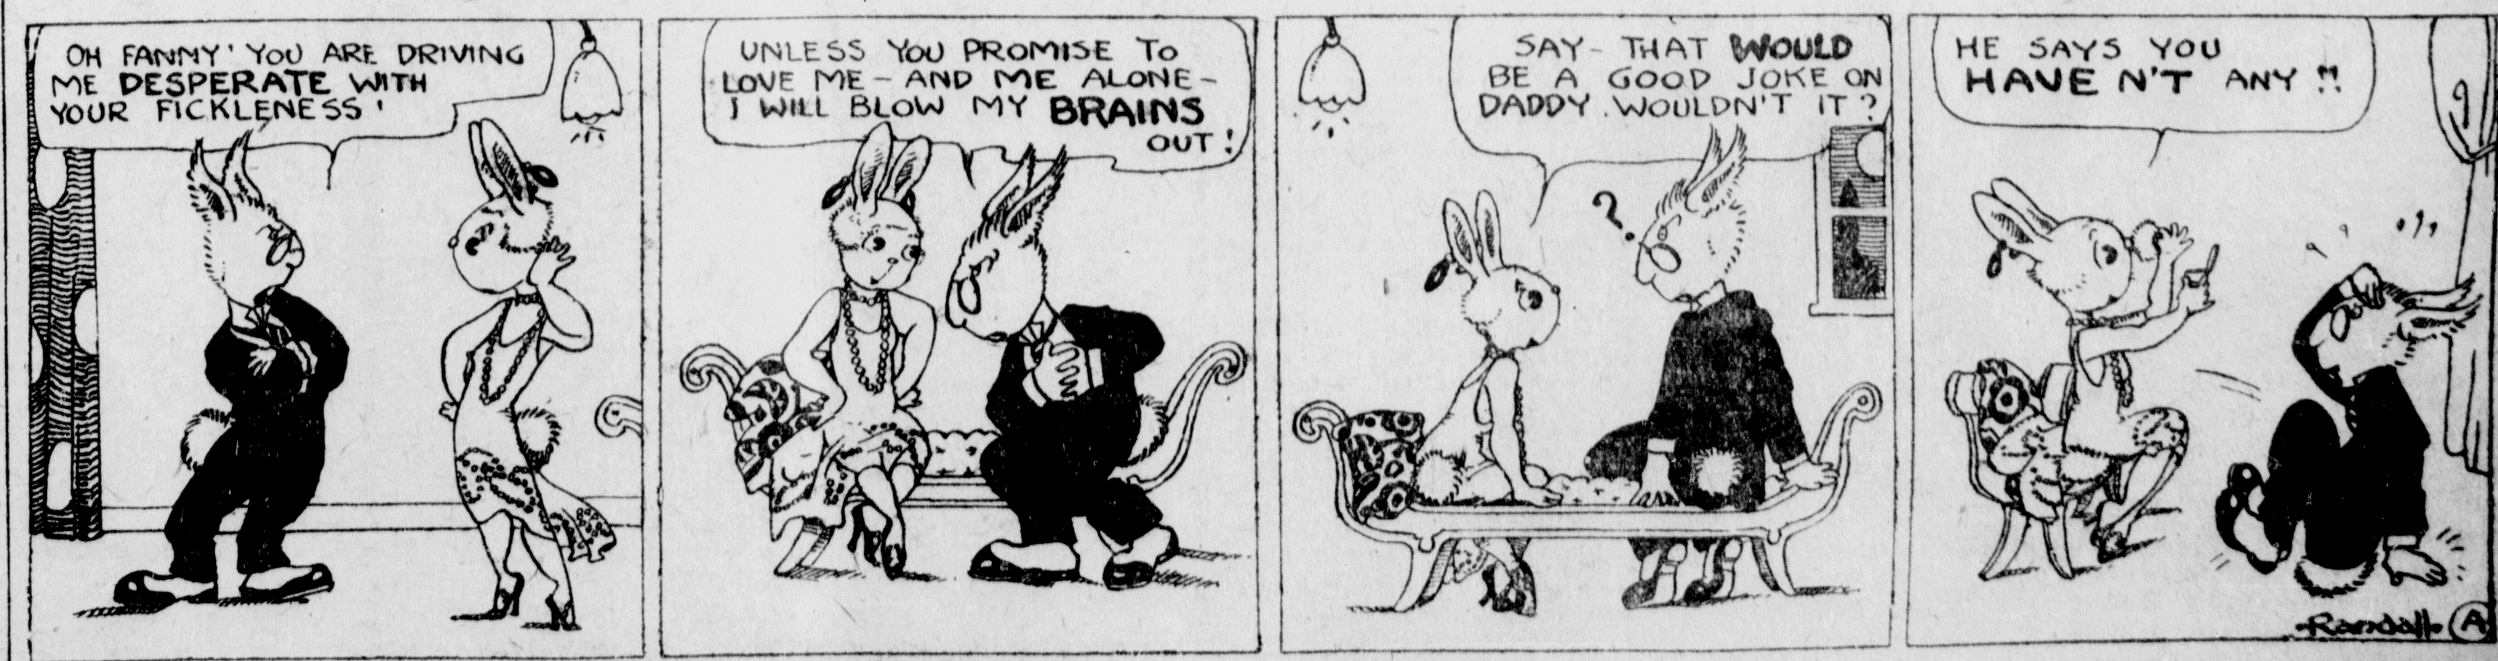

Before you buy your next car you owe it to yourself to learn at first hand the exact measure of excess value which Chrysler "58" at its electrifying low price, offers you.

You will find us ready to extend to you every opportunity to make searching investigation and exhaustive comparisons.

"When I didn't catch 'em any place else I got 'em on the bare mitt," says Joe.

LETTERS OF INTEREST

Is letter writing really a lost art? Many authorities would have us believe so and indeed in these rushing days of type writers and dicta there appears to be grave danger that the elegant epistle may become extinct. How few postmarked envelopes thrill us with the promise of pleasure and amusement! But, even though entertaining correspondence may be scarce on our lists, we need not be disheartened. Instead of visiting the postoffice, let us repair to the library where to be found many choice examples of letters composed by men and women of distinction who had some thing interesting to set down and who created leisure in which to do it. By scanning the shelves carefully, every taste, every mood and every shade of feeling can be satisfied.

A few of the volumes are: "Uncollected Letters of Abraham Lincoln," "Home Letters of General Sherman," "Life and Letters of Oliver Wendell Holmes," "Life and Letters of John Brown," "A Few of Hamilton's Letters Selected by Gertrude Atherton," "Diary and Letters of Gouverneur Morris," "Life and Letters of Henry Lee Higginson," "Letters of Walter Hines Page," "Letters of John Ruskin to Charles Eliot Norton," "Letters to a Friend, John Muir," "Letters of Sidney Lanier," "Letters to Madame Hanska from Honore de Balzac," "Love Letters of Victor Hugo,"

"The Letters of Elizabeth Barrett Browning," "Letters from the House of Alcott," "Some Letters of Wm. Vaughn Moody," "Letters of Harriet Countess of Granville 1810-1842."

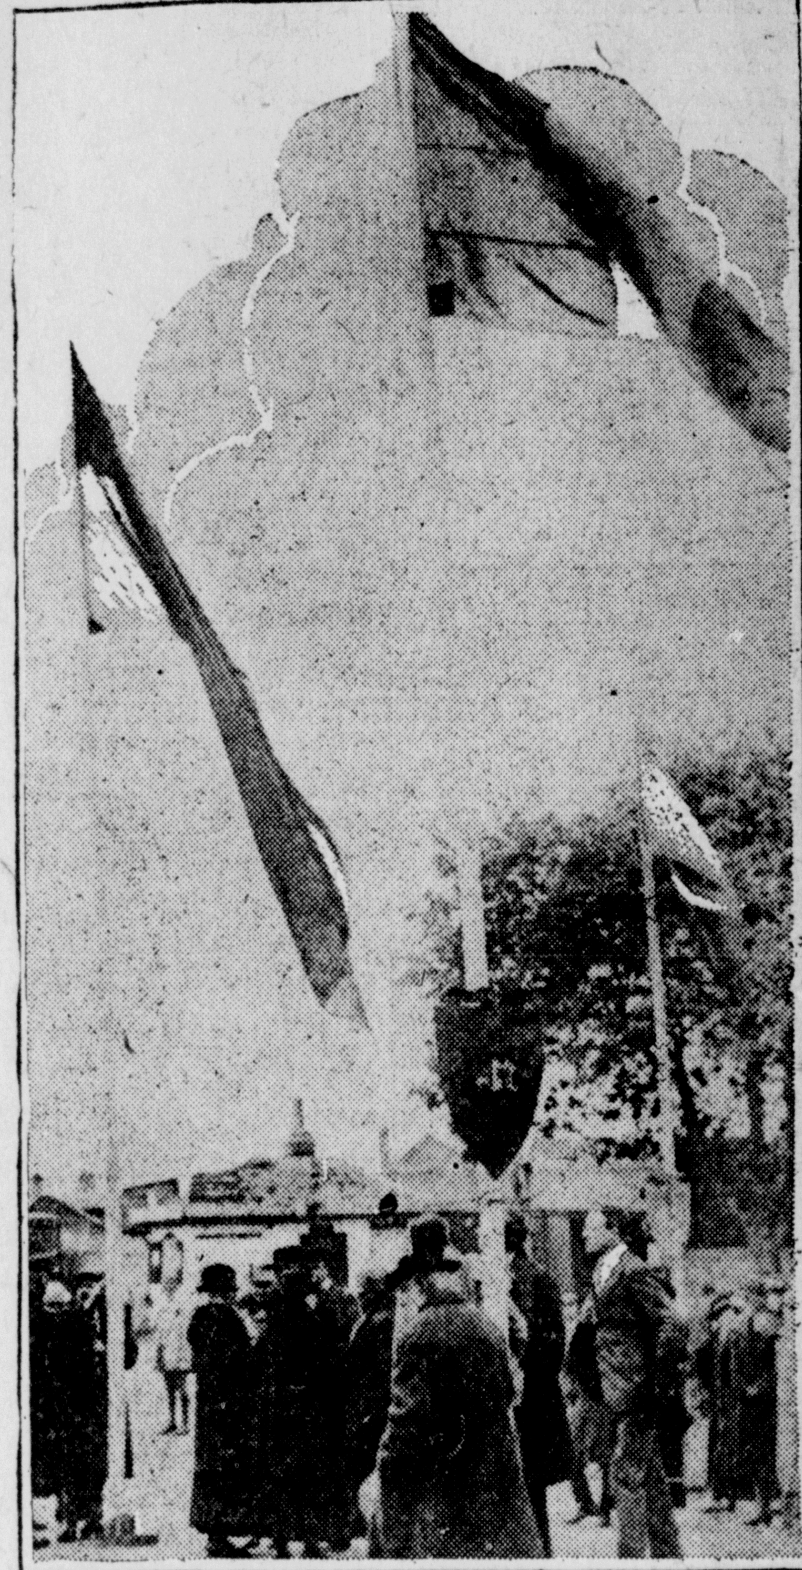

We are saving the cream of our collection till the last for a climax. It is, of course, "The Best Letters of Madame de Sevigne," that incomparable, indefatigable mistress of the pen.

It is only a step from writing letters to keeping a diary and on an adjacent shelf we find, "My Memories of Eighty Years," by Chauncy Depew, "Memoirs of Ralph Waldo Emerson," "Memoirs of Prince Metternich," "Memoirs of Napoleon Bonaparte," "Reminiscences of Julia Ward Howe," etc. In this department, too, we attain a climax. I discovered by accident that the library possesses a certain very valuable work, which is now out of print. While visiting in Cincinnati a friend told me of a fascinating book she was reading, "I wish," she said, "that I could lend it to you but it is not mine. I fear you will be unable to procure it any where as it has been out of print a long time. My cousin paid fifty dollars for the three volumes."

On my return I visited our county library and was delighted to come across these rare volumes. They are "The Diary and Letters of Madame d'Arblay (Fanny Burney)" and have been characterized by Macaulay as "the pearl of memoirs."

My Matrimonial Vacation

by VIOLET DARE

AUTHOR OF "The Half-Time Wife," "The Husband Tamer," "One Wife on Approval," etc.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

NANCY LARRABEE became a matrimonial free lance when her husband, a young army officer, is sent to the Philippines on foreign duty. Nancy stays home with her mother.

VIRGINIA, who uses the girl's charm and beauty to keep get what she wants in the world of society. Their landlord.

FRANK HARRISON, falls in love with Nancy, who tries to transfer his attentions to her mother, who is nearer his age. She gets into difficulty there, as she also does when trying to straighten out the matrimonial tangles of her other friends.

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT

XIX—THE MESH BAG AGAIN

I WENT for a long walk all alone the next morning. I wanted to straighten out—in my own mind, at least—the various entanglements in which I had walked in my efforts to help other people.

First, there were my mother, Virginia, and Frank Harrison. Frank thought I cared a lot for me, and was much better suited to Virginia, who was very fond of him. I'd partly succeeded in transferring his affections to her, but must hurry matters along.

Second, there were Nick and his wife, who I was sure had divorced him because her people insisted on her doing so, not because she wanted to. After seeing her that evening at the Russian restaurant when I was with Nick, and realizing that she was jealous of me, I felt more confident than ever that she still loved him. Well, I must work out a way of making her see it too, so that she'd come back to him.

Third, there were my broker friend, Jordan, and his lovely wife, Nathalie. That was a bit more difficult. He seemed so intent on rushing around with chorus girls, giving gay parties and all that sort of thing—would I ever be able to make him realize that his own wife was far prettier and more attractive than any of them?

The harder I thought, the faster I walked. I didn't want to stop and consider my own problem, my husband who liked somebody else better than he did me. I'd begun to lose confidence in myself so far as that problem was concerned. I had thought that I could make myself be happy without him, and I'd found that I couldn't. Since Jim had written me that he and the Eatons were to share a house at that distant army post, I'd been perfectly wretched.

In vain I told myself that I never could stand life in the tropics, and tried to fall back on my pride, reminding myself that Jim preferred Cassilda Eaton to me. It didn't do a bit of good. If I'd had money enough I'd have paid my fare to the Philippines and followed Jim that morning.

But I didn't have, so there was no chance of doing that, and I just kept on walking around the reservoir and thinking about some of the people with whom my life had become entangled.

Nick phoned me that afternoon to ask if I'd go to the theater and a dance club with him that evening. "Yes, if you'll find another nice man and let me take a beautiful woman along," I answered. I told myself that I might just as well begin my campaign with Nathalie Jordan at once.

At the theater I had but little opportunity to study the man Nick had brought. He seemed quite nice, but as I sat at one end of our group of four seats and he at the other I could judge him only by his voice.

We had supper at a charming place, the grille in one of the new hotels. The lights were cleverly placed and dimmed, so that there was a soft amber glow everywhere, and the music was entrancing. I looked at Nathalie as she sat chatting with Phil Leland, Nick's friend. She seemed to be having a beautiful time. For the first time I considered a new possibility. What if in the end she should not want to go back to Jordan, but should prefer somebody else? Stranger things had happened!

She looked very lovely, with gardenias in her dark hair; I could see that Leland was much attracted by her.

"This man Leland," I said to Nick, as we were dancing. Is he married?" I wanted to be sure of my ground before I got Nathalie involved in anything new.

"No—he's one of the rapidly diminishing race of bachelors," Nick replied, laughing. "I warn you, competition's keen in his case. His only asset is the fact that he isn't married, but it seems to be enough. He hasn't any money, has a good enough job, but it doesn't pay enough to keep him going as he'd like to go. How he manages I don't see. Mrs. Jordan seems to like him, doesn't she?"

"I imagine that women always do," I answered. So this man Leland was like me, just dangling on the edge of things, playing around with wealthy people without having any money of his own. I stayed that night with Nathalie; she was living in the very beautiful apartment which her mother had bought in one of the huge buildings on Park Avenue.

"Nathalie, did you see my gold mesh bag?" I asked as I slipped into a negligee. "I must have laid it down with your things as we came in."

She said she hadn't. We looked everywhere, and finally looked the garage to have the chauffeur look through the car. It wasn't there. "Probably I left it at the restaurant," I said at last. "I'll phone there in the morning."

It was gone, emerald clasp and all. "Oh, well, I never really liked it," I told Virginia, who was tearing her hair and raving over the loss. "But let's not tell Frank the bag is gone; I'm afraid he'd give me another one."

Nathalie phoned me later in the day. She had just missed a flexible bracelet, a very handsome one, set with diamonds. Did I remember seeing her wear it after we got home that night?

I didn't. Further search failed to reveal it.

I couldn't help wondering whether Nick's friend Leland had a faulty sense of "Mine and thine."

LEOPOLD INVOLVED IN ILLINOIS PEN PROBE

CHICAGO MURDERER CLAIMS HE REFUSED PART IN JAIL BREAK

Witnessed Escape Of
Convicts Who Slew
Deputy Warden

JOLIET, Ill., May 8.—Nathan Leopold, jr., millionaire college graduate who murdered 14-year-old Bobby Franks, today became one of the central figures in the investigation of conditions at the state penitentiary where he is held prisoner for life.

Evidence today revealed young Leopold narrowly missed an opportunity to escape from prison when seven convicts murdered a deputy warden and slipped through the gates to freedom.

While one of the jailers insisted Leopold pleaded with the escaping convicts to take him along, Leopold asserted he refused to participate in the dash to freedom.

The fact however, that Leopold was in solitary confinement at the time, Deputy Warden Peter Klein was killed and saw the convicts who stabbed him to death, flee down the prison corridors, makes it certain the youth will be an important figure in the official investigation.

Leopold had been sentenced to "solitary" because he had stolen sugar for his tomatoes in the mess room.

When the escaping convicts came down the corridor of the cell house they stopped at Leopold's cell, seized the keys from a jailer and freed him.

A hasty consultation was held, according to Jailer Jacob Judnich, and despite Leopold's pleas to accompany them, the convicts decided to leave him behind.

Leopold's version of the affair was slightly different. He insisted he knew nothing of the escape before it happened and that he refused to go with the other prisoners on their dash to freedom.

At the coroner's inquest into Klein's death, which will be opened Monday, Leopold may be called to tell what he knows of conditions in the penitentiary which made the murder and escape possible. Charges of corruption in prison management will be brought before the coroner's jury, State's Attorney A. H. Rehn announced.

Chance Meeting at Venice Ripens Into Marriage of Mrs. Horace E. Dodge Sr.

DETROIT, May 8.—A romance which began with a chance meeting at Venice, Italy, three years ago and later ripened into affection at Palm Beach, culminates today in the marriage of Mrs. Horace E. Dodge, Sr. widow of the automobile magnate and Hugh Dillman, of Columbus, Ohio, former actor and ex-husband of Marjorie Rambeau, screen star.

The ceremony will be quietly performed at the home of Mrs. Dodge's only son, Horace E. Dodge, Jr., at Grosse Pointe, a suburb of Detroit.

Following the wedding the Dillman's will leave on a honeymoon which involves an initial tour by automobile and eventually a trip to Europe.

On his arrival here to marry one of the outstanding fortunes amassed with picturesque prosperity of the automotive industry, Dillman, a man of 42, describes himself as a "wretched golfer, interested in the stage and literature."

"I am just a plain American without a hobby, a bug or as far as I know an eccentricity. I have lived a pretty sane, normal life and I hope to continue to do so."

Future plans Dillman said, involves a division of time between Detroit and Palm Beach. Mrs. Dodge has recently acquired the $4,000,000 Palm Beach estate of Joshua S. Cosden, oil king. Her Detroit home is Rose Terrace, at Grosse Pointe.

On the death of the late Horace Dodge his widow received the net income from an estate inventoried at $37,186,858. Since then the Dodge Brothers Motor Company was sold to Dillon, Reed and Co., of New York for $149,000,000 a record price transaction at the time.

GIRLS USE WHIP TO WIPE OUT INSULT

Man Punished For Remark By New
Form of Flapper

WARREN, O., May 8.—The story of how four girls, one of whom had been insulted, lured a man into their automobile, took him to a thicket in an outlying section and horse-whipped him, was revealed today by Chief Deputy Sheriff Boyd.

Boyd refused to disclose the names of the principals but said that several days ago the man made a slurring remark to one of the girls. The other three young women were present, he said.

Determining upon revenge the girls later enticed the man into their automobile and drove to the edge of town. At this juncture three of them pinned him down while the fourth produced a horsewhip.

During the beating which followed the man's cries aroused occupants of a nearby farm house who summoned police. Sincerely prevailed when police arrived.

HOME BREWING O. K. IS ANDREWS PLAN

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Home brewing and even running a small distillery in a private dwelling, provided the product is for personal consumption, may be carried on free from federal interference under new plans announced today by Assistant Secretary of the treasury Andrews.

Recognizing a man's home is his castle, the dry czar has decided to ask congress to change the wording of pending legislation designed to allow federal agents to search any private dwelling suspected of violating the prohibition law.

Andrews sent a bill to congress to strengthen the Volstead act. Its search warrant clause raised a storm of protests. Now the prohibition chief has agreed to change the measure so government officers private drew can obtain search warrants for private dwellings only after it is ascertained intoxicants are being manufactured for "commercial purposes."

MONROE, Mich., May 8.—Communicants of the First Baptist Church here have been promised a sermon tomorrow on "Sanctity of the Home" by their pastor, Rev. William R. Curtis, who has been enjoined from further alleged love-making involving Mrs. Iva Bryan, a 25-year-old member of the congregation.

Explaining the action of Mrs. Bryan, who is the wife of a well known real estate operator here, James J. Kelly, her attorney said: "My client simply says Dr. Curtis has annoyed her with devotion and refused to stop when requested to. She wants no more of it."

The 50-year-old pastor, however, professed not only that his relations with Mrs. Bryan had been wholly of a "ministerial nature" but said he did not know where the Bryan's home was since they recently moved.

Dr. Curtis in announcing his text for Sunday suggested charges of indiscretions against him may have been brought in the spirit of "vicious revenge" because of Mrs. Bryan's recent removal from direction of a group of children in the church.

Included in Mrs. Bryan's charges are allegations that Curtis, by resolution asking that civilians replace the prisoner

CLUE TO MISSING MAN MYSTERY FAILS

CADIZ, O., May 8.—Excitement which stirred the community yesterday following the finding of a body believed to be that of Clark C. Baker, missing Mansfield Dance hall proprietor, subsided today after Mrs. Frances Crum Baker, the missing man's wife, failed to identify the body.

Mrs. Baker, Mansfield authorities and Baker's relatives were summoned to Cadiz when the body was found hanging in a woodland near here. A handkerchief bearing blurred initials and other effects found on the body led to the belief that the body was Baker's.

Baker's sister, of Shelby, Ohio said the resemblance was so striking in that at first she was convinced the body was that of her brother. With the collapse of this clue, Mansfield and Richland county authorities resumed their investigation of the baffling mystery.

MOTHER'S DAY

A day has been set by the nation To honor the mother, so dear, To pay respect to the living And the departed forever.

A mother has joys and sorrows, Her child may wayward be, But her love goes out to him the more And prayers ne'er cease to be.

A mother's prayers will follow A wayward boy to the end, Still hoping, and wishing and watching, To see if he meets a true friend.

A friend that may give him good counsel, To shield him from doing the wrong, And in his heart plant a long-ing To return and be brave and strong.

And after his longing for mother, Will change to a loving caress, Or if in distant lands may be roving, A letter he will send to be blessed.

So then, if Mother be living, Wear a flower of brightest hue, To cheer her along her weary way, To show that your heart is true.

But, if she is gone, and is waiting, Her loved one "over there," Then wear the white carnation, The emblem, so pure and fair. Almina J. Downing, Xenia, Ohio.

The Theatre

Whoever has heard of, read of or seen the play, "Ember-or Hones," the celebrated stage success of Eugene O'Neill, is undoubtedly aware that the title character in this was played and is still being played by a Negro actor, Charles Gilpin. He is rated quite an excellent actor too, having gained transcontinental applause.

Gilpin is now to be seen on the screen as "Uncle Tom" in the Universal Production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." He is probably the first colored trouper to gain such notable recognition in the movies.

The colored actor is making rapid strides on the stage of the country. Since the birth of Jazz he has held a popular spot light for his rendition of the new-found music. The Negro's sense of rhythm and ability to sing has long been appreciated. But his arrival on the stage, as a real actor has been hampered.

Revue composed entirely of colored actors and actresses have been enthusiastically received in New York and Paris. The smartest night clubs have their colored performers. But the role of more serious stage work has been left until now to the white actor who has attempted to imitate the feelings and life of the Negro. But at last the Negro's ability and willingness to enact the stage characters of his people have resulted in the discovery of many fine actors and actresses. Their work will continue to be appreciated, as long as they are cast properly. To convince himself that his

This is the last of a series of thirty editorials which appeared in this space weekly. Each has attempted to preach the doctrine of faith in the home town, co-operation, harmony in business relations and community progress.

All hackneyed phrases and all ancient and time-worn subjects—topics for the Babbitts if Mr. Mencken is to be recognized as authority. If any has hit its mark or achieved its purpose, it is not visible on the surface.

After reading these editorials for nearly thirty weeks, (if they were read), a movement was started in Xenia and gained considerable momentum, to revert the city to central standard time. That, in itself, is proof of the impotence of mere words set on paper.

But the movement did not succeed, so that perhaps there are kindred spirits also fighting the reactionary efforts of conservatism. A cross section of the history of civic achievement in Xenia is given in the story of Xenia's municipal park. The park site was donated to the recreation association by P. H. Flynn.

The association then started a campaign for $10,000 to finance its development. The campaign waged lustily for some weeks for a sum which would represent less than one man's donation to a similar enterprise in Dayton, fell short of its mark nearly half-way. And of the fifty per cent pledges received, only a part of them were ever made good by the pledgers.

Charley Murphy, it is reliably reported, spent $268,000 on the Murphy theater in Wilmington. Readers, I give you the Barber fountain. Mr. Murphy has not lived in Wilmington for years and could expect no personal benefit from his theater. Xenians who live and rear their children here, fell down on a $10,000 campaign for a park.

But there is a bright side. Those who are working for the best interests of Xenia have managed to give it a capable and efficient city government, one of the best municipal water plants in the state, miles of beautiful paved streets, excellent schools and churches.

When it is considered that these achievements have been done in the face of a bitter reactionary tendency that has fought everything progressive, their importance is greater.

Xenia is operating in a rut of conventional small-town dimensions. When this paragraph is read this series of editorials will be forgotten. But Mayor John Prugh has a scheme that may yet crystallize sentiment toward a progressive goal. Perhaps he will attempt to launch it soon. I give up but Mayor Prugh does not.

XENIA TO OBSERVE MOTHER'S DAY SUNDAY
Due reverence will be paid mothers of the nation in song and story, Sunday, when annual Mother's Day programs will be given throughout the land.

All peoples, men, women and children, will pay respect to their mothers, to whom they owe the greatest debt, in various manners on that day. Mother's Day has been set aside in May for several years and fitting observance has become an institution in the land. The carnation is the official Mother's Day flower, a fragrant white flower to be worn if one's mother has passed away and a colored one if she is alive.

Even nature itself has awakened to show the beauty of life, which is symbolized in the spirit of Mother's Day. There could be no prettier time of year chosen to pay her reverence than when the trees are in bloom, bursting into leafy bud and the earth is carpeted with new grass and the air is full of golden sunshine and fragrance.

Churches will play the leading part in the observance of Mother's Day, throughout the United States. Xenia pastors have announced fitting programs in connection with the day and mothers will be highly honored in all services. In addition to sermons, programs of music and story have been rehearsed for the day.

Altars of churches will be banked with the first Spring flowers and expected perfect weather will add to the joy of the occasion.

In his proclamation, urging observance of Mother's Day, Governor Vic Donahey said, "Our nation will not perish as long as it keeps alive the fire of its devotion, the mother home and country, the sweetest trinity locked in the hearts of men."

Miss Routzong's was the first composed of a menu entirely prepared by sixteen such dinners, each one prepared by the hostess. Her menu was elaborate, consisting of five courses and a color scheme of yellow and white, Lindenwood's colors, was carried out.

As guests of honor she had the president of the college, Dr. John Lincoln Roomer and his wife. Another student, Miss Minnie Seip, was also a guest.

WOOD NAMED CHIEF OF ELECTION BOARD AT MEETING FRIDAY

Edward Wood, Xenia, Democrat, was elected chief and Earl Short, Xenia, Republican, was named clerk of the board of elections, at the re-organization meeting Friday afternoon at the Court House.

Short has been clerk a number of years. Wood automatically became chief under the Ohio law providing that the board member of opposite political affiliations from the clerk and with the least number of years yet to serve on the board shall be appointed.

Since Short is a Republican the chief must necessarily be a Democrat. There are two Democratic members. Wood has but one more year to serve, his term expiring in 1927.

Ralph Kendig, Valley Road, Beavercreek Twp., is the new Democratic board member succeeding John Alexander, Yellow Springs, whose term expired this year. Alexander was formerly chief. Kendig was appointed for a two year term.

D. O. Jones, Beavercreek Twp., and Walton Spahr, Sugar Creek Twp., are the two Republican members, the former being re-appointed this year.

ICE CREAM MAKERS TO MEET IN DAYTON
Ice cream manufacturers and milk distributors from Montgomery, Fayette, Clark, Miami, Darke, Champaign and Greene Counties will meet in Dayton Tuesday to consider the increased demand for dairy products.

Tests just made by the State Department of Agriculture, it was announced in Columbus today, show that the butter fat content of ice cream manufactured in Ohio is one-fourth greater than that required by the state standard.

During 1925, the average consumption of ice cream in Ohio was two dishes per person per week. With the arrival of warm weather, the demand for ice cream has greatly increased, manufacturers report, and virtually all of the plants are running at high speed.

THREE INDICTED BY GRAND JURY FACE JUDGE GOWDY ON SATURDAY

Three persons indicted by the May grand jury last Monday appeared before Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy Saturday morning and a fourth was scheduled for arraignment sometime during the day.

Frank Stunich, W. Main St. grocer, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with carrying concealed weapons. Sentence was deferred and the case continued until next Friday morning by Judge Gowdy during which time the court announced he will conduct a further investigation into the case. He was released under $500 bond.

Stunich is alleged to have assaulted John Day. He told the court he had acquired the habit of carrying a loaded revolver since he was held up and robbed by three youthful bandits last February.

W. H. Minor, Rosemore, indicted on three counts of issuing checks without sufficient funds in the bank, will not be required to enter a plea until Judge Gowdy appoints counsel to represent him. He represented he was without funds to employ private counsel and asked for the pauper's privilege.

John Nooks, colored, indicted for carrying concealed weapons, was scheduled to be arraigned Saturday.

Susie Sanders, colored, bound over to the grand jury for pointing firearms at Fred Porter, colored, also appeared in court Saturday.

Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall declared the Sanders case was the only one not considered by the grand jury because of lack of time. If the criminal docket becomes crowded the May grand jury may be recalled to consider the Sanders case as well as other matters. Meanwhile she was released on her own recognizance.

She is said by police to have fired several shots at Fred Porter during a disturbance at her home but aimed poorly and wounded another man in the hand. Porter is serving out a fine in the County jail for disorderly conduct.

Dorothy Ash
DELAWARE, O. — (Special) — Women's ability to out-talk men was again demonstrated when Marietta High school's representative, Dorothy Ash, won first place in the second annual state high school extemporaneous speaking contest recently held at Ohio Wesleyan University here under the auspices of the department of oratory. Victory in this contest carries with it the state high school extemporaneous speaking championship.

The rules of the contest require that the student with but seven or eight hours for preparation must speak for eight minutes upon a subject which he draws by lot. Both preliminary and final contests are held under this plan.

"Successful Women Politicians" was the subject which Miss Ash spoke upon in the final contest. Miss Ash is 17 years of age and a senior in the Marietta High school. Paul Peed, 17, representing Portsmouth High school, took second place in the contest and Nancy J. Mason, 15, representing East High school of Columbus, won third place. Both students are seniors.

Marietta High school won a silver loving cup presented each year by Ohio Wesleyan University to the school which wins the speaking championship. Miss Ash won a $200 scholarship. Peed a $100 scholarship and Miss Mason a $50 scholarship. A total of $405 in scholarships was distributed among the students participating with seven contestants receiving honor scholarships as honor a mention prizes.

Nothing daunted a few days later she secured another machine and shattered three world's records, traveling 138 miles an hour. Above Mlle. Joan LaCosta is leaping from the racer.

ROADSIDE TREES

No one who drives a car or rides a horse or travels afoot along our country roads can fail to recall the comfort and charm of those stretches where the way lies through woods. Even the scattered patches where the roadsides are lined with double rows of ancient trees—maples or elms or chestnuts in New England, oaks and hickories and black walnuts in other regions—afford a welcome shade and rouse a gentle gratitude for the unknown benefactor, now long dead, who planted them.

Why should there not be more of such inviting aisles? Certainly there is no lack of room. Roadside planting is not new. Some of the states have long been interested in it and have done much work, yet the Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture estimates that there is still available for the purpose some nine and a half million acres of roadside land now vacant and useless.

Besides the Department of Agriculture, the Federation of Women's Clubs and various memorial associations interested in perpetuating the memory of soldiers who died in the Great War have become interested in the work, from the economic as well as the interested and sentimental point of view. They are directing their efforts chiefly toward inducing townships to take up the matter in a comprehensive way.

Nine and a half million acres are capable of producing a great deal of valuable timber, in a country that is using up its present supply of timber at an appalling rate. But it could produce much more. Hickory nuts are selling for twenty-five cents a pound and English walnuts at the same price, and pecans for twice as much. Even chestnuts are scarce and high. What a harvest we could reap from our roadside nut trees if the waste land were put to work! There are foreign chestnuts that are immune to the blight, and native butternuts that bear kernels thrice the ordinary size and hickory nuts with thinner shells than usual. Who but the dwellers in far woody places know the delicate flavor of beechnuts or of the native wayside hazel?

We need some modern Johnny Appleseeds who shall be as "nutty" as he was seedy.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

WHEN Thomas Jefferson knew that his days on earth were numbered he requested that three services he had rendered the American people be engraved on his monument. The first of these was the authorship of the Declaration of Independence, the second the authorship of the Statute of Virginia for Religious Freedom. This famous bill was drawn by Jefferson in 1779 and became a law in 1786. Inasmuch as the essence of this statute is embodied in the first amendment to the Constitution, it makes particularly good reading for the times.

In slightly abbreviated form and couched in noble language, here follows the statute which marked a golden milestone in the march for liberty:

"Well aware that the opinions and beliefs of men depended not on their own will, but follow involuntary the evidence proposed to their mind; that Almighty God hath created the mind free, and manifested His supreme will that free it shall remain, by making it altogether insusceptible of restraints; that all attempts to influence it by temporal punishments or burthens, or by civil incapacitations, tend only to beget habits of hypocrisy and meanness; that to compel a man to furnish contributions of money for the propagation of opinions which he disbelieves and abhors, is sinful and tyrannical; that our civil rights have no dependence on our religious opinions any more than our opinions in physics or geometry; that the opinions of men are not the object of civil government, nor under its jurisdiction; that it is time enough for the rightful purposes of civil government for its officers to interfere when principles break out into overt acts against peace and good order; and finally the truth is great and will prevail if left to herself—errors ceasing to be dangerous when it is freely permitted to contradict them: We the general Assembly of Virginia do enact that no man shall be compelled to frequent or support any religious worship, place or ministry whatsoever, nor shall be enforced restrained, molested, or burthened in his body or goods, or shall otherwise suffer on account of his religious opinions or beliefs; but that all men shall be free to profess and by argument to maintain their opinions in matters of religion, and that the same shall in no wise diminish, enlarge, or affect their civil capacities."

To the reverent approbation of this document we commend all American citizens, Jew and Gentile, Protestant and Catholic, Free Thinker and Agnostic. If it is not possible for us to live together under so broad and benign an ideal of freedom, mutually tolerant each of the other's belief, then our Washingtons, Jeffersons, Jacksons, and Lincolns lived in vain, and we their spiritual and political descendants are degenerate sons of illustrious sires.

EAGLES URGE FLAG DISPLAY ON SUNDAY

Public display of the American Flag Sunday, Mother's Day, is being urged by Xenia Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, in accordance with a national policy for observance of the day.

The aerie itself is celebrating the day with triple program, which includes exercises at the County Republican Office.

Weather for this time of year is certainly wintry and heavy overcoats and winter wraps have been in demand for several days. Snow is falling. Written examinations preparatory to the closing exercises of Xenia Theological Seminary are being held this week. Total loss caused by the explosion at the Miami Powder Co's plant at Goes is estimated at close to $20,000. Mr. Tom Langan, of the depot restaurant, is on the sick list suffering with a stiff neck. Installation of the new bank in the Steele building has been somewhat delayed owing to the non-arrival of the vault.

let the acid remain on the marble longer than thirty minutes, or it will destroy the finish. The ammonia, being an alkali, neutralizes the acid and stops the action. If the finish is dulled or roughened, smooth the surface with a wet cloth dipped in powdered pumice, and then polish with whiting. Grease on marble may be removed by covering with a paste made of turpentine and whiting; let stand thirty minutes, then wash off with soap and warm water. Kerosene mixed with salt and vinegar will also clean marble, but the vinegar also should not remain on for more than a few moments.

CLEANING STONE AND MARBLE

So often the housekeeper is puzzled as to how to clean her stone hearth, a piece of marble, or a treasured ornament of alabaster. It is as shiftless to let these hard surfaces become disfigured as to let one's furniture go endlessly without polish.

Alabaster is easily kept clean. Remove any stains by sponging with flannel, wet with spirits of turpentine, then wash with lukewarm suds of white soap and wipe dry with a clean cloth. Polish with a dry, soft-bristled brush in plaster of Paris.

Stone Hearth or Steps: If grease-stained, dissolve one cup of washing soda in two quarts of water and pour this onto the stone. Then cover thickly with a paste of fuller's earth and hot water, and let stay on overnight. In the morning, merely brush off and the stone will be clean.

IN DAYS OF OUR FOREFATHERS

Women Prepared Their Own Medicines

The wise pioneer women learned to gather, in woods and fields, the remedies the Indians used. From the rafters of colonial houses, hung great bunches of dried roots and herbs. From these, in times of sickness, the busy mother brewed simple and powerful remedies.

From roots and herbs, Lydia E. Pinkham, a descendant of these sturdy pioneers, made her Vegetable Compound. The beneficial effects of this dependable medicine are vouched for by hundreds of women who tell of returning health and energy.

Mrs. Wm. Kraft of 2838 Vinewood Ave., Detroit, Mich., saw a Pinkham advertisement in the "News" one day and made up her mind that she would give the Compound a trial. At that time she was very weak. "After the first bottle," she writes, "I began to feel better and like a new woman after taking six bottles. I recommend it to others and always keep a bottle in the house."

If Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?

Infirmary in the morning, initiation of a Mothers' Day class of candidates at 1 o'clock and a program at the O. S. and S. O. Home at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

A band concert, review of the color battalion and an address by Austin Alschl Springfield attorney will feature the afternoon program at the home. At both places silver birch trees will be planted in honor of mothers.

The maximum of promised flight, I do not pray for, day or night. Seven miles would be too long a drive, I'd really be content with five.

SIDELIGHTS

ON Greene County History

GLACIAL DRIFT

Centuries ago, possibly before America was inhabited by primitive man, the great ice sheet many feet in thickness, moved slowly down from the north until it reached an irregular line in Ohio north of the Ohio River, scooping out beds of new lakes, levelling hills, filling the valleys and cutting new river channels.

This immense mass of ice passed over the land which centuries later became Greene County leaving in this section numerous traces of its work. Materials for an extended study of the drift are spread over the rocky floor of the county.

As the ice came grinding over, it polished and planed the surface of Niagara limestone almost over the entire county, especially are the markings of the ice noticeable in sections of the county where cliff limestone is exposed. These grooves are obvious on the uncovered surface of Yellow Springs quarry and have a direction in most instances of from 10 to 15 degrees west of north.

They extend in a general direction which cuts the direction of the "Glen," immediately adjoining, at a 25 degree angle, showing that not even such a deep fissure as the "Glen" had influence in changing the course of this ponderous juggernaut of ice.

Greene County is indebted to the ice sheet for the beds of clean sand and gravel which occur almost everywhere on the surface of this section, especially on the higher points.

Of the several gravel banks in the county the one at Yellow Springs is deserving of special notice. It is located south of the village, about one-half mile from the railroad tracks. Its altitude rises above the rather flat surrounding country to a height of forty feet and embraces an area of about two acres.

In addition to the sand and gravel deposits in its composition, there are considerable quantities of clay. Boulders of huge size are found in the bank. The largest one is seven feet long. It is similar to other large-sized boulders of southern Ohio in that its composition is largely of gneiss, banded with rose felspar, a crystalline substance.

The extensive gravel beds in the county furnish a well-nigh inexhaustible supply of excellent road-making material and sand and gravel for concrete making.

Receipts at the post office showed an upward trend, a big increase from the corresponding month in 1925, a report prepared by the postmaster shows.

Postal receipts during April 1926, amounted to $4,266.45 as compared with receipts during the same month last year of $3,725.90. This is an increase of $540.55.

MODISH MITZI—Dad Says Charity Should Begin At Home BY J. V. JAY

"Mitzi? Well, she is working all day for some charity organization," explains Dad. "She's never home." At this moment Mitzi enters in a perfectly new and very smart polka dotted silk dress. She wears one of those new, shiny gold bands that wind twice around the neck. "It's all over, Dad. Our campaign to get clothes for the poor is an overwhelming success."

Polly child, you certainly do look, ah, well, tempting, yes, tempting is the word," groans Dad. "It's my new dress," explains Polly, modestly. Of course, that may have something to do with it, the dress combines polka dots and crepe. It has a polka dotted lined cape that is very swagger. The girls are springing a lot of new clothes these days.

There must be a mistake. About a dozen people must be using Dad's charge account. Mitzi tells him no. She just had to have a lot of new clothes. She gave all her others to charity. "Charity," roars Dad as much as he could ever roar. "Charity begins at home."

Today's Talk

THIS LITTLE TYPEWRITER

For fifteen years this little machine has been my companion. In a room of quiet, and one so silently lonely, each small key has imprinted upon the page the simple thoughts from my heart. It has written nothing new. Just the human expressions of one mind, colored by the better thoughts of other minds, but bathed in the heart of this writer's desires.

Have they been worth while? This little typewriter won't say. It simply serves these fingers. Fingers that have tried at so many other tasks—but this at least the happiest of all.

Just thoughts from a very imperfect and often blundering life. Thoughts inspired by the beauty and loveliness of others, sweetened by the sweetness of nobler lives.

This little typewriter is my sacred shrine sometimes. Because I tell it so much. Often what I tell it never gets farther than its imprint—and then is tucked away or else destroyed. Because we had our little talk anyway. And sometimes all we need is the little talk—even though merely given to the faithful and obedient machine.

For, you see, the one you want most of all to talk to isn't always around. Maybe just in your heart where you store your hunger and your love.

But many of the simple talks go out into the big world, as this and others have gone. This little typewriter is always ready. It never finds fault. But I think it does keep saying: "Do better, do better, do better!"

Of course, we never know whether it is worth its keep, but we keep talking to it anyway.

We do so much not knowing why. Perhaps sometime it will all be explained.

XENIA WILL HAVE COLORED BIG LEAGUE BALL; MARCOS TO PLAY

Xenia is to have colored big league baseball this summer. This was the substance of an announcement made Friday night by John Matthews, manager of the Dayton Marcos, entry in the National League for colored players. Matthews has a strong club entered in the league this year but found the schedule of home games at Dayton would not warrant playing a result he has decided to split them all on the home lot. As the home game between Xenia and Dayton, his team representing the cities in the league.

Marcos will be seen Wednesday afternoon at Washington Park opening the season Wednesday afternoon, May 12 at the local diamond against the strong A. B. C. Club, of Indianapolis, Ind. Sunday and Monday the two teams will play at Dayton after which the Marcos go on the road for three weeks before playing on the home lots again.

The A. B. C. club is entered in the colored league this season and with Rube Foster, Chicago, back of the outfit several star players have been obtained to bolster the lineup making it one of the strongest professional organizations in the country.

Padrone, the Cuban ace, will probably be the pitching selection of the A. B. C. leader in Wednesday's game while Manager Matthews will likely start Wilson the lad who struck out seventeen batters in last Sunday's game at Dayton against the Wiedemann club, of Newport, Ky. Goldie Davis, St. Joe, Mo., hurling ace, is also a member of the Marcos staff and can be relied upon if needed.

The Marcos lineup this season comprises star players from all sections of the country. Whitlock at first base is said to be one of the classiest keystone guardians in colored baseball and is of big league calibre.

Marcos are hoping to get away to a good start this season and will place their strongest lineup in the field Wednesday.

Wednesday's game will start at 3 p. m. with competent officials in charge.

Health Hints
by the Father of Physical Culture

Catarrh can be readily and quickly cured in many instances by giving all parts of the body free access to the outside air. Savages who go without clothing know nothing of the horrors of catarrh. The more clothing you wear the more inclination you will have towards catarrh. The ordinary habit of bundling up in the winter time is the most prolific cause of colds, and of catarrh that frequently accompanies or follows them.

Do not use too much covering at night. Dress as lightly as is consistent with warmth. Linen or cotton undergarments are far better than woolen worn next to the skin. Take air baths at every opportunity, removing the clothing and walking about the room nude with the windows wide open. It will be of especial advantage if one can live in the country, or if one can walk without clothing in the open air and take sun baths at the same time. Air and sun baths possess a remarkably invigorating and tonic effect and should be of great assistance in effecting a cure.

A diet must be adopted of such quantity and quality as not to add to the impurities already seeking an outlet. The greatest care should be used not to over-eat. Thoroughly masticate every morsel of food. If you masticate properly and satisfy your thirst between meals, there should be but little desire for liquids during a meal. Live on pure unfermented juice—apple or grape—when treating the disease in its acute stages and in beginning the treatment of the chronic symptoms for at least two to five days. In fact, it might be well to take a short fast at any time that one has no appetite. During this fast an appetite will usually appear.

Meat should be used very sparingly, if at all, and it would be far better to avoid it entirely in most cases if one can secure a proper variety of other food to insure perfect nourishment. Ripe fruits, green salads, cereals and nuts are to be recommended.

If nuts are thoroughly masticated, and eaten only at meal time when the body is actually in need of food, one should have no trouble in digesting them. If cooked food is used it would be of great advantage to use some uncooked food with each meal. Follow the appetite as much as possible.

USE OF NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING WILL PRODUCE RESULTS

Newspaper advertising is of vital importance to every man or woman who spends money for the necessities or luxuries of life. By making a daily practice of reading the newspaper advertisements you keep in close touch with the latest offerings and lowest prices.

Warren Wright, president of the Calumet Baking Powder Co., is authority for the statement that they spend millions of dollars in newspaper advertising. This tremendous volume of advertising creates a gigantic demand for Calumet.

Calumet advertising, like all other advertising back of a successful product, goes on record in black and white as to the value of Calumet Baking Powder. It promises the housewife better bakings at lower baking costs and the Calumet Company must live up to their printed pledge, which, of course they do and have done for the past twenty-five years.

Newspaper advertising is localized advertising. Consequently, it benefits the dealer as well as the consumer, because it reaches buyers who can transact business with him. It moves the goods from his shelves. It keeps his stock fresh and clean. It enables him to sell the highest quality merchandise at the lowest possible prices.

ENGLISH MEN TEACHERS DECLARE WAR, ATTACKING EQUAL PAY PLAN FOR WOMEN

LONDON, May 3 (United Press).—A serious educational conflict has arisen among teachers in English schools by the firm stand of men teachers not to serve under women and not to accept a status of equal salary with women. The women teachers claim equal rights and a sex war that threatens to shake the present school system has been declared.

The fight is between the Schoolmasters' Association and the women's organization which is commonly known as N. U. T. or the National Union of Teachers. The women have been working persistently for a long time, with the result that the men became alarmed and declared open warfare.

The schoolmasters passed a resolution, amid much cheering, declaring their opposition to any assistant master serving under a headmistress and pledged the association to give full financial support to any member who if called upon to serve under a woman and refuses to do so. They then, in conference, unanimously took a stand of uncompromising opposition to the principle of equal pay for men and women teachers.

The men claim that the duties of men and women teachers are not equal and not interchangeable. James Kay of Liverpool said: "The mothers of this country might be assured that teachers wanted manly education for the boys. Women are relentless in the efforts to secure equal pay, and the men will have to meet their irrational policy relentlessly."

One of the strong arguments of the men is that most of them have families to support and that, if the women were granted equal pay they would not marry, which would be a serious thing for the nation. They pointed out that women would be living on a higher social scale than men teachers.

While the men stand unanimous in their fight, there is some discord in the N. U. T. Society. Miss J. Cowdroy, headmistress of the Crouch End High School for Girls, commenting upon the sex war, said "No man who could afford to pay for his boy's education would allow him to be taught by a woman. I do not believe that women teachers deserve equal pay with men. A class of boys is more difficult to handle than one of girls. During the war many boys suffered because they were taught by women and could not come up to standard when they were later taken over by men teachers."

LORD HARDINGE

SIR WYNDHAM CHILDS

SIR SAMUEL J. G. HOARE

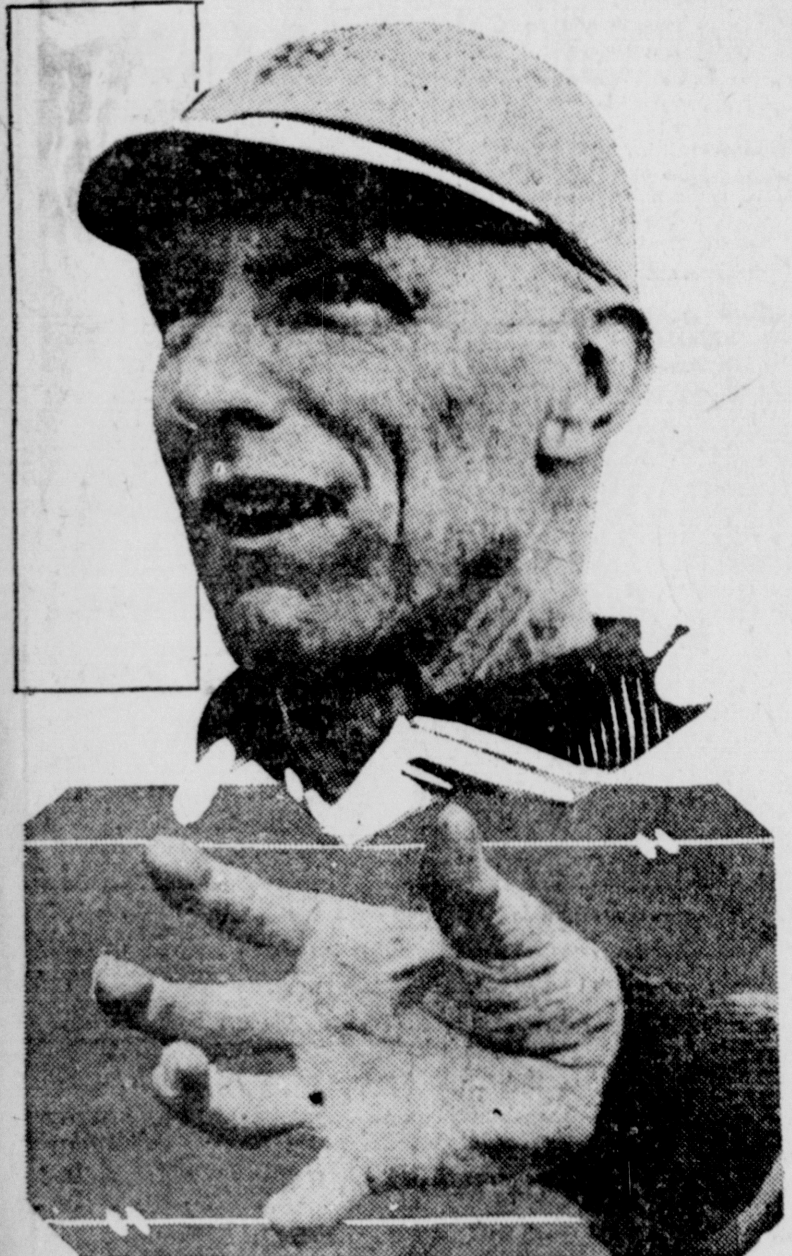

SIR WILLIAM HORWOOD

Here are the four men upon whom the brunt of the Government's activities will fall during the great British strike. Lord Hardinge is responsible for the maintenance of street car, subway, bus, electric light and gas service. Sir Wyndham Childs and Sir William Horwood have charge of the regular and special police forces. Sir Samuel J. G. Hoare has the task of keeping the mails moving.

Ball in Hand Is Worth Two in Air

Was Joe's Motto But Hand Suffered

Closeups of the most interesting parts of Joe Sugden, old-time catcher, now coach of the Philly pitchers—his angular, smiling face, and his good right hand. "It's still good, for the shape it's in," says Joe, speaking of his hand. Every joint on that hand has been broken, fractured or just naturally bent out of shape. "When I didn't catch 'em any place else I got 'em on the bare mitt," says Joe.

When British Miners Voted to Strike:
It Will Take Similar Vote to End It

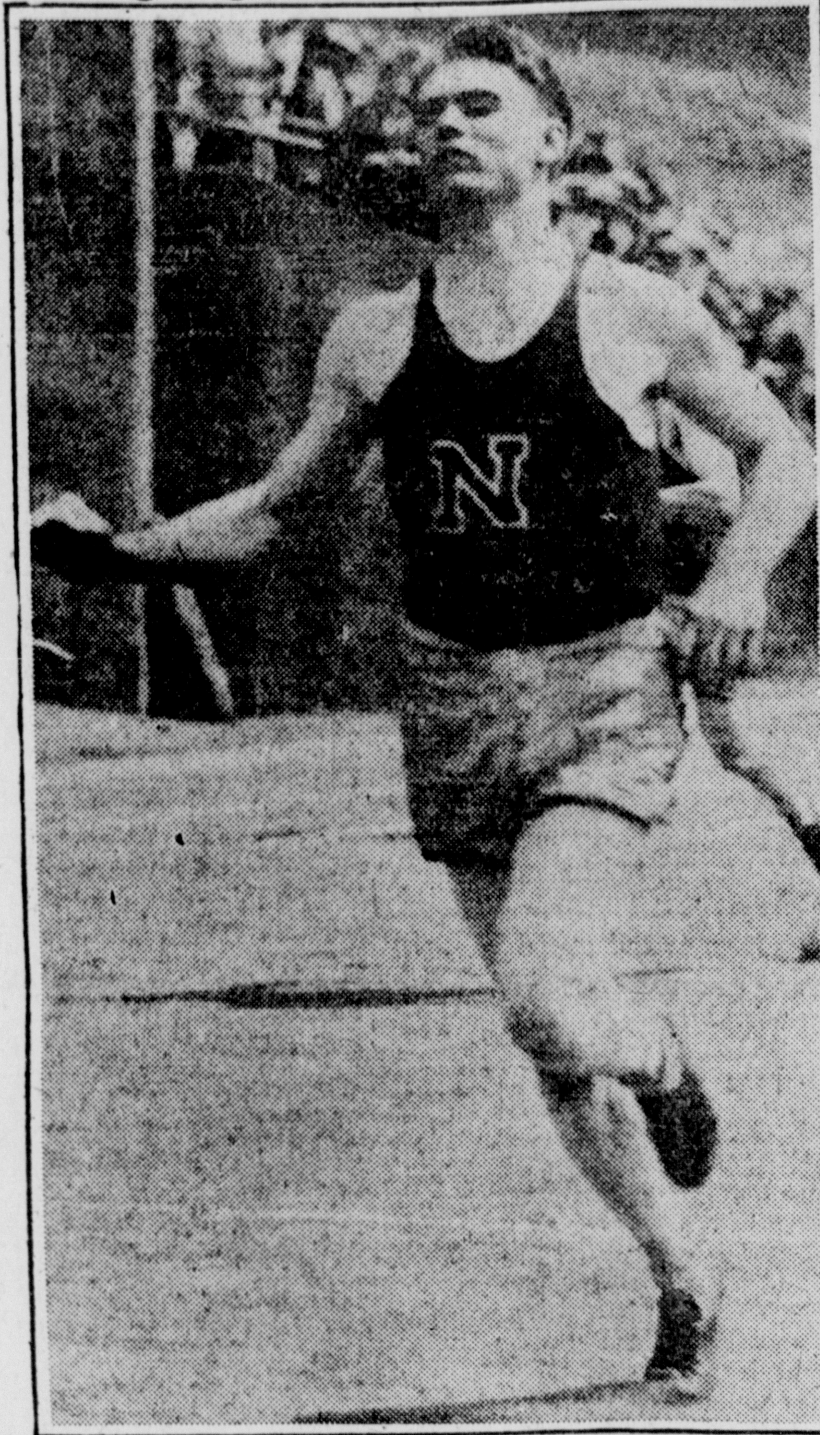

This striking photo shows some of the British mine workers voting to go on strike. The vote in favor of the walkout was overwhelming. It will take similar balloting to end the tieup, which has extended now to the transportation unions.

Newest Member of Cabinet "Set"

This little miss is the newest member of the family of Secretary of Labor and Mrs. James J. Davis. She'll be another "J." baby, too, as the given name of Davis, Mrs. Davis and their four other children all start with the letter J.

Laughing at Father Time Again.

Here is Roland Locke, Nebraska sprinter, breaking the world's record for the 220 yard dash. Later the same day at Lincoln, Neb., he tied the world's record for the 100-yard dash, 9 6-10 seconds.

CAPT. RENE FONCK

Led by Hugh Gibson, the American representatives in the Geneva Arms Conference were instructed by President Coolidge to insist on reduction of armaments. Mrs. Marjory Ashby will preside over the World's Congress of the Women's International Suffrage Alliance in France. An attempt of Congressman F. H. La Guardia, of New York, to amend the Prohibition Enforcement bill with a "wet" plank was ruled out on a point of order in the House. Captain Rene Fonck, French "Ace of Aces," arrived in the United States to attempt a trans-Atlantic flight.

Most Brilliant

DANA YUNG KWAI

Dana Yung Kwai, a Chinese senior in the Sheffield Scientific School at Yale University, has been voted most brilliant student in his class. He has been elected a member of three fraternities and won his "Y" on the swimming team.

U. S. Spokesman

The attitude of organized labor of America toward the British general strike will depend largely upon the stand taken by William Green, president of the American Federation of the mine unions. Green, of Labor, former head withheld comment as the strike started.

Rail Leader

The British general strike was made effective by the walk-out of the railroad unions in sympathy with the miners. J. H. Thomas, secretary of the railworkers, was the leader in the general strike movement.

Faces Arrest

Shapurji Saklatvala, Communist member of the House of Commons, was ordered jailed for seditious utterances for making a speech in Hyde Park before the strike was in effect throughout Britain.

Another London Strike Photo by Radio

Former Prime Minister David Lloyd George is shown (in centre) leaving an important conference with two political companions as the British strike tieup began. The picture was being sent by radio to the United States within thirty minutes after it was snapped in London.

Screen Beauty Defeats Disease

Happiest girl in Hollywood is Dorothy Seastrom of Texas. Six months ago, after years of struggle to gain recognition in the films, she was given a long term contract by First National. Then came tuberculosis and Dorothy was forced to retire to a sanitarium in the hills. Now she's conquered the disease and First National has signed her to new contract.

Grand Old Woman of Stage Appears in "Two Orphans"

Luke Leblond, for years "the power behind the throne" in Hawaii politics, has quit the island for the United States.

New Editor of Encyclopedia Says He Won't "Jazz Up" Work

J. L. Garvin, British journalist and new editor of the Encyclopedia Britannica, now at work revising and bringing up to date the colossal work, denies emphatically that an effort will be made to "jazz up" the work. However, in view of the fact that there are more American than British readers of the volume, he will give special attention to subjects on which there is a difference in the American and British points of view.

A goose egg advertisement on this page swamped the Kenia Locust Grove Silver Fox Ranch for goose eggs, according to Dr. D. E. Spahr, who inserted the ad. We produce results, even to the we have to make the geese produce the eggs to supply the demand.

The doctor says the geese have been laying day and night for him and he is beginning to get tired of their quacks. He says he might do something for them, but he is no quack doctor.

THAT'S QUEER

I bought a goose
Of Hiram Muck;
When I tried to catch it
It began to duck.

Say, doctor I went in swimming the other day and when I got out of the water I found some goose flesh on my arms and legs. Was I a goose for going in swimming on such a cold day?

I have been told that Doctor Spahr tried that stunt of turning on the electric lights at night so the geese would think it was daylight and would get up and lay. It worked until one of the pesky critters learned how to switch the lights off. Since then the doctor has been in the dark as to how to move next.

I GIVE UP

I often wonder
Why in the deuce
My folks used to call
Me a little goose.

These geese are getting even with their owner for turning on the lights at night. Now every time they see a cloud coming they act like they think it is getting night and they go to roost. They set down on the job, so to speak.

Doctor Spahr also raises silver foxes. He also has some gold fish, a nickel radiator and a copper kettle. And, furthermore, he has registered black silver foxes. The silver is tarnished just a little perhaps.

TERRIBLE POETRY

Gold and silver
Have I none,
But I've gold and silver
Beasts, my son.

He doesn't have a hen that lays a golden egg, but he does have a fish that hatches out gold fish, if that would interest you. Let me see, he might advertise that he has a silver fox, a gold fish and a copper snake.

He has one goose with a lump on his head. When asked what caused it, he explained that he was operating on the thing and ran out of ether.

BRING ON THE CAMPHOR BOTTLE

There was a young fellow named Mack,
Whose head was as sharp as a tack,
A book he did write,
Which was surely a fright,
For the laughable jokes he did crack.—Dr. Spahr

By the way, those books are on sale at The Gazette, 1¢ per copy.

LETTERS OF INTEREST

Is letter writing really a lost art? Many authorities would have us believe so and indeed in these rushing days of type writers and dictation there appears to be grave danger that the elegant epistle may become extinct. How few post-marked envelopes thrill us with the promise of pleasure and amusement! But, even though entertaining correspondence may be scarce on our lists, we need not be disheartened. Instead of visiting the postoffice, let us repair to the library where are to be found many choice examples of letters composed by men and women of distinction who had some thing interesting to set down and who created leisure in which to do it. By scanning the shelves carefully, every taste, every mood and every shade of feeling can be satisfied.

A few of the volumes are: "Uncollected Letters of Abraham Lincoln," "Home Letters of General Sherman," "Life and Letters of Oliver Wendell Holmes," "Life and Letters of John Brown," "A Few of Hamilton's Letters Selected by Gertrude Atherton," "Diary and Letters of Gouverneur Morris," "Life and Letters of Henry Lee Higginson," "Letters of Walter Hines Page," "Letters of John Ruskin to Charles Elliot Norton," "Letters to a Friend, John Muir," "Letters of Sidney Lanier," "Letters to Madame Hanska from Honore de Balzac," "Love Letters of Victor Hugo."

"The Letters of Elizabeth Barrett Browning," "Letters from the House of Alcott," "Some Letters of Wm. Vaughn Moody," "Letters of Harriet Countess of Granville 1810-1843."

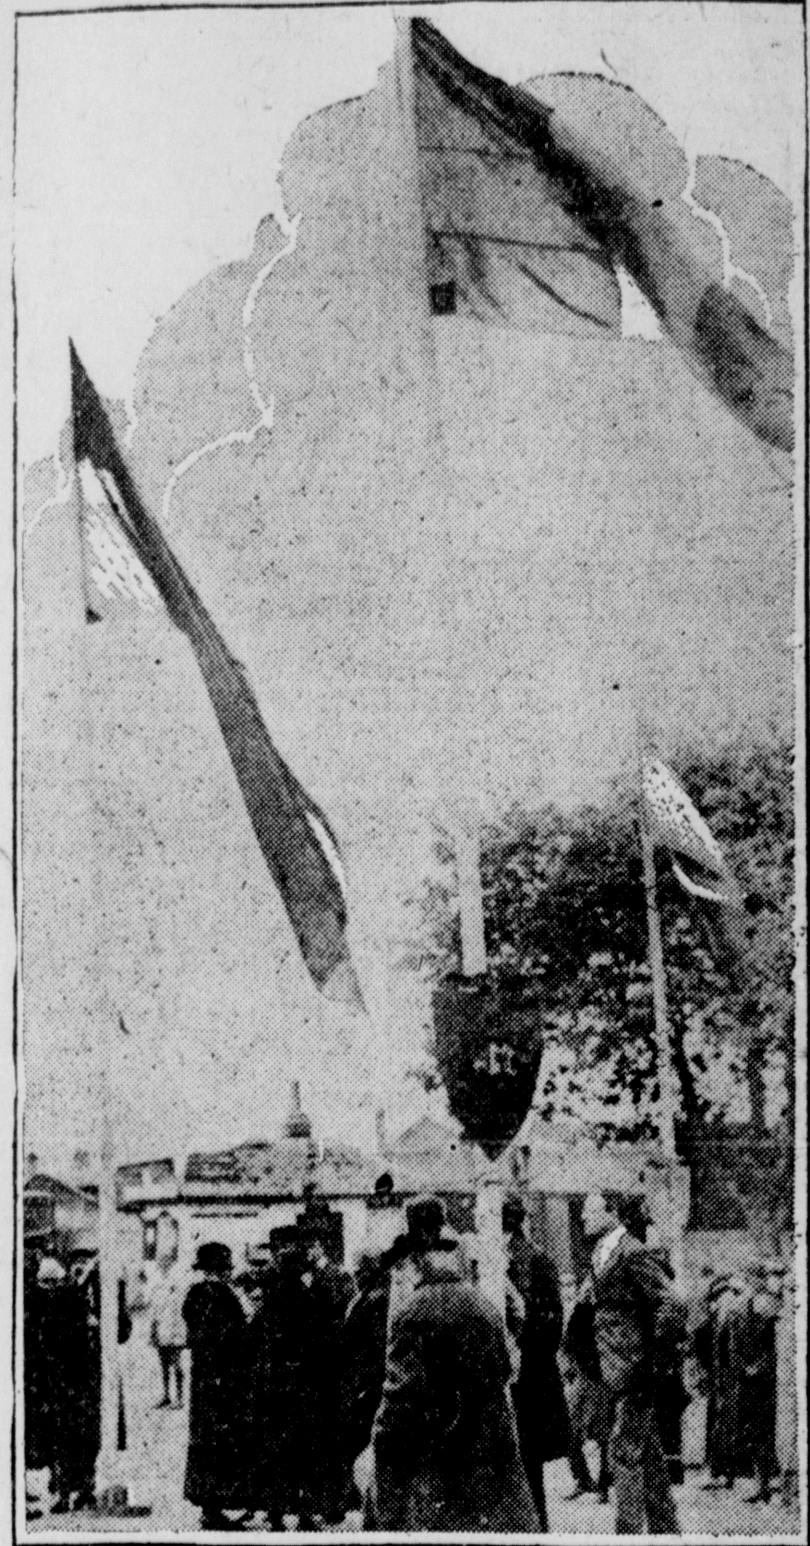

We are saving the cream of our collection till the last for a climax. It is, of course, "The Best Letters of Madame de Sevigne," that incomparable, indefatigable mistress of the pen.

It is only a step from writing letters to keeping a diary and on an adjacent shelf we find, "My Memories of Eighty Years," by Chauncey Depew, "Memoirs of Ralph Waldo Emerson," "Memoirs of Prince Metternich," "Memoirs of Napoleon Bonaparte," "Reminiscences of Julia Ward Howe," etc. In this department, too, we attain a climax. I discovered by accident that the library possesses a certain very valuable work, which is now out of print. While visiting in Cincinnati a friend told me of a fascinating book she was reading. "I wish," she said, "that I could lend it to you but it is not mine. I fear you will be unable to procure it any where as it has been out of print a long time. My cousin paid fifty dollars for the three volumes."

On my return I visited our county library and was delighted to come across these rare volumes. They are "The Diary and Letters of Madame d'Arblay (Fanny Burney)" and have been characterized by Macaulay as "the pearl of memoirs."

MEASURING RURAL ROUTES NEARS END

Task of re-measuring all rural mail routes in Greene County, under personal supervision of Postmaster C. S. Frazer, is nearing completion, it is announced. Work will be finished sometime next week, the postmaster said.

Re-measurement is being made at orders of the postal department at Washington, D. C.

Greene County routes have not been measured since they were established—twenty years ago. It is believed the original estimates were slightly inaccurate.

My Matrimonial Vacation

by VIOLET DARE

AUTHOR OF "The Half-Time Wife," "The Husband Tamer," "One Wife on Approval," etc.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

NANCY LARRABEE becomes a matrimonial free lance when her husband, a young army officer, is sent to the Philippines on foreign duty. Nancy stays home with her mother.

VIRGINIA, who uses the girl's charm and beauty to help get what she wants in the world of society. Their landlord.

FRANK HARRISON, falls in love with Nancy, who tries to transfer his attentions to her mother, who is nearer his age. She gets into difficulty there, as she also does when trying to straighten out the matrimonial tangles of her other friends.

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT

XIX—THE MESH BAG AGAIN

I WENT for a long walk all alone the next morning. I wanted to straighten out—in my own mind, at least—the various entanglements into which I had walked in my efforts to help other people.

First, there were my mother, Virginia, and Frank Harrison. Frank thought he cared a lot for me, and was much better suited to Virginia, who was very fond of him. I'd partly succeeded in transferring his affections to her, but must hurry matters along.

Second, there were Nick and his wife, who I was sure had divorced him because her people insisted on her doing so, not because she wanted to. After seeing her that evening at the Russian restaurant when I was with Nick, and realizing that she was jealous of me, I felt more confident than ever that she still loved him. Well, I must work out a way of making her see it too, so that she'd come back to him.

Third, there were my broker friend, Jordan, and his lovely wife, Nathalie. That was a bit more difficult. He seemed so intent on rushing around with chorus girls, giving gay parties and all that sort of thing—would I ever be able to make him realize that his own wife was far prettier and more attractive than any of them?

The harder I thought, the faster I walked. I didn't want to stop and consider my own problem, my husband who liked somebody else better than he did me. I'd begun to lose confidence in myself so far as that problem was concerned. I had thought that I could make myself be happy without him, and I'd found that I couldn't. Since Jim had written me that he and the Eatons were to share a house at the distant army post, I'd been perfectly wretched.

In vain I told myself that I never could stand life in the tropics, and tried to fall back on my pride, reminding myself that Jim preferred Cecilia Eaton to me. It didn't do a bit of good. If I'd had money I'd have paid my fare to the Philippines and followed Jim that morning.

But I didn't have, so there was no chance of doing that, and I just kept on walking around the reservoir and thinking about some of the people with whom my life had become entangled.

Nick phoned me that afternoon to ask if I'd go to the theater and a dance club with him that evening. "Yes, if you'll find another nice man and let me take a beautiful woman along," I answered. "I told myself that I might just as well be giving my campaign with Nathalie Jordan at once."

At the theater I had but little opportunity to study the man Nick had brought. He seemed quite nice, but as I sat at one end of our group of four seats and he at the other I could judge him only by his voice.

We had supper at a charming place, the grille in one of the new hotels. The lights were cleverly placed and dimmed, so that there was a soft amber glow everywhere, and the music was entrancing. I looked at Nathalie as she sat chatting with Phil Leland, Nick's friend. She seemed to be having a beautiful time. For the first time I considered a new possibility. What if in the end she should not want to go back to Jordan, but should prefer somebody else? Stranger things had happened!

She looked very lovely, with gardenias in her dark hair; I could see that Leland was much attracted by her.

"This man Leland," I said to Nick, as we were dancing. Is he married?" I wanted to be sure of my ground before I got Nathalie involved in anything new.

"No—he's one of the rapidly diminishing race of bachelors," Nick replied, laughing. "I warn you, competition's keen in his case. His only asset is the fact that he isn't married, but it seems to be enough. He hasn't any money, has a good enough job, but it doesn't pay enough to keep him going as he'd like to go. How he manages I don't see. Mrs. Jordan seems to like him, doesn't she?"

"I imagine that women always do," I answered. So this man Leland was like me, just dangling on the edge of things, playing around with wealthy people without having any money of his own. I stayed that night with Nathalie; she was sitting in the very beautiful apartment which her mother had bought in one of the huge buildings on Park Avenue.

"Nathalie, did you see my gold mesh bag?" I asked as I slipped into a negligee. "I must have laid it down with your things as we came in."

She said she hadn't. We looked everywhere, and finally I asked the garage to have the chauffeur look through the car. It wasn't there.

"Probably I left it at the restaurant," I said at last. "I'll phone there in the morning."

It wasn't there either. Evidently it was gone, emerald clasp and all. "Oh, well, I never really liked it," I told Virginia, who was tearing her hair and raving over the loss. "But let's not tell Frank the bag is gone. I'm afraid he'd give me another one."

Nathalie phoned me later in the day. She had just missed a flexible bracelet, a very handsome one, set with diamonds. Did I remember seeing her wear it after we got home that night?

I didn't. Further search failed to reveal it.

I couldn't help wondering whether Nick's friend Leland had a faulty sense of "mine and thine."
